REFERENDUM ON POTATO CONTROL LAW PROPOSED

WALLACE SAYS LAW CANNOT BE ENFORCED

Farmers Demand That Program For Spuds Be Carried Out

By Henry Grecne

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Stepping into a torrid hearing, called to discuss the controverted potato control law, Secretary Wallace today answered shouts of "nullification" with a proposal for a referendum to see whether a control program is desired.

Five hundred farmers, gathered in the agriculture department auditorium, heard sharp rebukes tossed at those in charge. Roars of protest were thrown against Wallace's statement yesterday that he intended to "avoid" enforcing the potato law. Many farmers loudly demanded that the tax-control program for spuds be carried out.

Late in the day Senator Bailey (D. N. C.) who had criticized Secretary Wallace sharply, replied to the referendum suggestion by stating that it had been disapproved by congress.

Bailey said congress considered the referendum plan carefully for months and then decided that it should not be included in the law.

Wallace stepped suddenly and unexpectedly into the auditorium, saying he desired to explain his bombshell remarks of yesterday. Greeted coolly by the audience as he entered, he left amid an almost complete silence.

Under attack repeatedly during the morning, Wallace told the farmers at the afternoon session that his own personal attitude has nothing whatever to do with enforcement of an act of congress.

Budget officials, he said, now are considering a request for funds for enforcement of the law. The compulsory potato control, he said, could be made to work if the vast majority of growers wanted it, but he couldn't visualize how bootlegging could be stopped.

Wallace added that his objections had no bearing on enforcement of the law if money was available, but that they might have a bearing on his recommendations to congress for modification of the act.

"You can't enforce laws that go against the will of the majority," Wallace said.

PEORIA SLAYER LOSES FIGHT IN SUPREME COURT

Gerald Thompson's Only Hope Rests With Governor

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Gerald Thompson's only hope to escape death in the electric chair Oct. 15 for the murder of Mildred Hallmark, young Peoria cafeteria hostess June 17, tonight rested with Governor Horner and the state pardon board.

While the Peoria youth who was convicted of slaying the girl and throwing her body into a ditch in an outlying cemetery, wailed in "death row" at Joliet penitentiary, the Illinois supreme court today refused to consider the case.

Although there was no word here from Ren Thurman, the youth's counsel, as to whether he would seek clemency from the governor and pardon board, it was expected Thompson's attorneys would make such a plea. The next scheduled meeting of the board was set for Oct. 8 here.

If Thurman turns to the governor in an effort to save his client, Mr. Horner may have two decisions to make in the case. First, whether to commute the death sentence, and if he decides not to do that, who will officiate at the execution.

Col. Frank Whipp, the Joliet warden, was scheduled to serve, but because he asked to be relieved of duty the day before the execution is scheduled, the governor has indicated he will comply with Whipp's request and name another warden by Oct. 14.

The supreme court denied Thompson's motion for a writ of supersedeas which would have stayed execution of sentence until the high court considered a writ of error. The decision was handed down without comment.

Thurman filed the motion Tuesday. Under court rules of procedure the justices could not act on the motion until today, but very few persons connected with the court expected an immediate decision.

By denying the motion, the court destroyed his last chance in the high court to escape the chair. The justices, by their decision, eliminated the necessity of action on Thompson's motion to sue as a poor person.

ALLOT FUNDS TO GIVE WORK TO 3,500,000

Will Provide Work For Needy After November First

Copyright, 1935

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Corrington Gill, chief of staff of the New Deal work relief program, disclosed today that virtually all funds have been allotted for the drive designed to provide jobs for 3,500,000 needy and their families after Nov. 1.

He checked over allotments totaling $4,298,500,000, leaving President Roosevelt a "kitty" of $866,500,000 for administrative expenses and a few additional projects intended to take up the job slack here and there.

Coincidently, state works progress administrators were tabulating new figures on the number already given jobs. The last official estimate was less than 1,000,000 but Gill predicted the task of ending "this business of relief" would be at least 90 per cent accomplished on the Nov. 1 deadline.

From the Pacific Coast came the president's approval of additional WPA projects to furnish employment to those not provided for by other work relief agencies.

WPA, however, already was within a quarter of a billion of the $1,250,000,000 it will spend. State administrators had the power to select from three or four billion in approved projects those meeting a locality's particular needs.

Statistician and former newspaperman, Gill aided in organizing the public works administration and the federal housing administration. He now is assistant WPA administrator.

"The situation is different from the time when we put 4,000,000 to work in 30 days," Gill said, referring to the civil works administration.

"We've paid a great deal more attention to the type of projects we're going to carry through. And through it all we've kept in the forerground that these aren't just any 3,500,000 people we've got to put to work, but specific John Smiths and Bill Jones."

U. S. Judge Rules Adjustment Act Constitutional

Became Valid August 24 The Day Congress Added Amendments

Kansas City, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis held today the agricultural adjustment act became constitutional August 24—the day congress amended it.

He held the act invalid as to tax levies made under it prior to the amendment.

Thus he stamped the first judicial O. K. on New Deal legislation drafted to clinch the constitutionality of the act amid court attacks the nation over.

The ruling was in the form of a memorandum opinion on the act and the process taxing provision. It was given in a case involving $3,000,000 in taxes and 24 Missouri millers, meat packers and tobacco manufacturers fighting collection.

The jurist's point is that congress could not make legal by an amendment the enforcement of an act prior to an amendment. He found the act invalid originally because of an unauthorized delegation of legislative (taxing) powers.

"The rates now in force, therefore are the rates fixed by congress and not rates fixed by the secretary of agriculture," he said in a 32-page opinion.

Searlet Fever In State Spreading

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The public health department today announced that 217 new cases of scarlet fever were reported in Illinois last week, compared with 82 weekly cases at the end of August.

"Case reports have been registered from more than two-thirds of the counties during the past three weeks and it is probable that the disease is present now in practically every county," said Dr. Frank J. Jirka, health director.

"Scarlet fever was never more prevalent in Illinois as during the last seasonal peak of the disease in April. Since the middle of September, when the usual seasonal upward trend set in, case reports have been greater in number than for the corresponding period last year."

Italy Has Nearly 350,000 Soldiers In Africa, Claim

Rome, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Italy, it was estimated reliably today, has nearly 350,000 soldiers in Africa or on their way.

A big air force, much motorized equipment and the most modern arms have been sent. Some 200,000 troops are known to have sailed from Italian ports. There are 30,000 troops on the and transports are waiting to take still more.

Native troops in Eritera and Somaliland are estimated by military officials at 60,000 and there are reports many men have been sent to Eritera from Libya.

This large army, military experts said, is not excessive, since it will have to combat "1,000,000" Ethiopians on their own ground.

Airplanes estimated to number 500 are divided among Eritrea, Libya and Somaliland. The latest relief report was that one cruiser, two destroyers and two gunboats are in the Red Sea with five smaller units in Libyan waters.

AFFIRMATIVE GOP PROGRAM IS PROMISED

Theodore Christianson Opens Attack On Administration

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Speaking with the authority of the high Republican command, Rep. Theodore Christianson of Minnesota levelled a return fire today at three western tour speeches of President Roosevelt, calling them "the opening gun of his campaign for reelection."

At the request of National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, however, Christianson pledged in a speech broadcast on a national network, that the Republican party "rededicated to the principles of constructive liberalism would not rest its case on Democratic derelictions but will offer a positive and affirmative program."

Though centering his barrage on the administration's agricultural policies—extolled by the president in a recent address at Fremont, Neb.—Christianson also attacked its spending and the invitation to liberals to unite with the new dealers.

"The fundamental error of the administration" said Christianson was not in adopting a program for adjusting an agricultural economy disrupted by the world war but in regarding the AAA "as the final solution of the farm problem."

The farmers of the nation have accepted the AAA only as a "stopgap," he added. "The future of farming calls for increased, not reduced production; for the development of markets rather than the restriction of output."

He said New Deal claims of a $313,000,000 increase in income for farmers over 1934 was "nothing to write home about" as the sum represented a gain of only 5 per cent.

ARMS EMBARGO IS PLANNED BY UNITED STATES

Secretary Hull Will Act When War Is Declared

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A proclamation for clamping an embargo on munitions shipments to Italy and Ethiopia was drafted tentatively at the state department today as an extraordinary step toward insuring continued American neutrality.

Only official confirmation that the undeclared war raging in Africa was an "outbreak of war" within the meaning of the new neutrality act was awaited by Secretary Hull and his aides before recommending to President Roosevelt the issuance of the arms embargo directed by that statute.

The chief executive, cruising on a warship in the Pacific, was kept fully informed of Italo-Ethiopian developments by Hull. But the secretary declined any comment on movements of Rome's modern legions beyond assuring newsmen that the government was prepared, fully and adequately, for immediate action in any emergency.

Beside the arms embargo, an official determination that "a state of war" exists also would authorize Mr. Roosevelt to issue a proclamation warning all American citizens against traveling on vessels of either belligerent nation, except on his own risk. Issuance of that proclamation would affect American travel only on Italian liners, since Ethiopia has no merchant marine.

Hull, assisted by Joseph C. Green, chief of the office of arms and munitions control, was the author of the tentative embargo proclamation violation of which would be punishable by a fine of $10,000 and five years imprisonment.

Once the proclamation is issued, the neutrality act provides that it "shall be unlawful for any American vessel to carry any arms, ammunitions, or implements of war to any port of the belligerent countries named in the proclamation as being in war or to any neutral port for transshipment to, or for the use of, a belligerent country."

Details of the proposed proclamation were closely guarded, but well informed observers believed it was confined to the "arms, munitions, and implements of war" already designated by the president under provisions of the act setting up the national munitions control board.

WORLD SERIES WEATHER

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Cubs and Tigers and the 50,000 fans who will watch them resume world series warfare tomorrow at Wrigley Field may expect weather just a little warmer than the frigid blasts that swept Navin Field in Detroit yesterday.

Temperatures in the middle forties during game time were predicted tonight by J. R. Lloyd, forecaster for the U. S. department of of agriculture here. The temperature was expected to drop to freezing early tomorrow morning, but Lloyd said there would be a gradual rise during the day, with plenty of sunshine.

Nellie Tipton Muench Takes Witness Stand and Denies Planning Kelley Kidnaping

By Howard W. Flieger
Associated Press Staff Writer

Mexico, Mo., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Denial of Nellie Tipton Muench, former St. Louis society matron, that she "financed" a 1931 kidnaping, reached a climax today with her own vehement witness stand declarations of innocence.

Mrs. Muench, her bright red hair contrasting with the wan paleness of her face, sobbed loudly as friends added the weight of their testimony to her defense, staunchly re-iterated her story under cross examination, then paraded from the courtroom on the arms of her husband after the defense unexpectedly closed its case.

It had been expected that counsel for Mrs. Muench, accused of planning the abduction of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, wealthy and socially prominent St. Louis physician, would require at least another day to present their testimony.

The tiny county seat courtroom was packed with curious but quiet women, as Mrs. Muench, attractive member of an influential Missouri family today told a jury of farmers, that "I am not guilty," but overlooking claiming as her own a son whose birth she announced six weeks ago.

The oversight, whether deliberate or by accident, came in the face of court action in St. Louis county, wherein a Pennsylvania servant girl, Anna Ware, claimed as her illigitimate son the baby whose birth was announced by Mrs. Muench as "a gift from God." The baby, innocent creator of interest in the Muench case, has not been in court with the defedant since her trial opened Monday.

Mrs. Muench, trimly clad and carrying herself with poise, spoke calmly as she branded as untrue, every phase of state evidence.

Catagorically she denied visiting a St. Louis county resort where Adolph Fiedler, the proprietor, said the kidnap plot was hatched, and in rapid order she denied acquaintance with any of the other accused or convicted defendants in the Kelley case.

The defense opened its case today with a stream of witnesses who testified that the reputation of Fiedler, whose story of the Kelley kidnaping resulted in the indictment of Mrs. Muench was "bad." Then moving swiftly, counsel, through witnesses, laid a foundation for Mrs. Muench's firm denial of all the evidence against her.

The state's case, ridiculed by the defendant in her testimony and subsequent testimony of her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, was substantially that Mrs. Muench was the "goldie" who gathered with Angelo Rosegrant and Felix McDonald, both convicted, and with others to make plans for kidnaping Dr. Kelley in April 1931.

The defense rested shortly before 2 p. m. after having taken less than a day to submit its case which hinged chiefly on the testimony of Mrs. Muench and her husband. Judge W. C. Hughes adjourned court until 9 a. m. to permit the state time to assemble its rebuttal testimony.

"UNOFFICIAL WAR" HAS BEEN DECLARED; TROOPS ORDERED ACROSS MAREB

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE MAY BOYCOTT ITALY

League Of Nations Is Discussing Problem How To Stop War

By Wade Werner
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Geneva, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The possibility of economic and financial sanctions against Italy was seriously discussed by the League of Nations tonight as it tackled the problem of how to stop warfare it failed to prevent.

This discussion took on a direct turn when press reports from Paris said Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Premier Pierre Laval of France had tentatively agreed upon an economic boycott against Italy if she is declared the aggressor.

British circles indicated the first duty of the League council, called into urgent session Saturday, will be to decide whether the world is faced with a case of unprovoked aggression or war. If the first is the case sanctions under pumitive article 16 will automatically operate against the aggressor and the League assembly will be convoked to discuss their application.

Proof of how the war events are moving with appalling rapidity was seen in the decision of the Council committee of 13 to notify Ethiopia that it is now useless to send neutral observers to the Ethiopian frontier to forestall hostilities.

A protest from Emperor Haile Selassie, who had repeatedly expressed confidence the League would protect Ethiopia, said Italian airplanes roaring over Aduwa dropped 78 bombs, damaged the Red Cross hospital and killed civilians.

(This was officially denied by the Italian Embassy in London.)

Officials of the League said war between the countries was a fact, although not officially declared. Fears were expressed lest the fighting spread into Europe.

An urgent session of the full council was called for Saturday and the council's committee of 13 met this afternoon for a preliminary discussion of the situation.

A scheme to send a commission of neutral observers by air to the troubled zone was found impractical.

On the vital point of determining who is the aggressor centered the council's gravest responsibility. A telegram from Rome convinced League officials Premier Mussolini plans to contend Ethiopia and Ethiopia only can be regarded as the aggressor.

A clear decision officials apparently believed, would be reached on this question regardless of what may happen.

Unconfirmed information in international circles was that Laval will tell Eden France would come to the help of Great Britain in case British ships were attacking while in defense of the League covenant, but France wants an understanding that Britian would come to the aid of France in any similar future emergency.

France, it was stated, will announce she is bound by the covenant when the covenant is put into effective operation and consequently is bound by sanctions, if they are applied.

The council committee of 13 is expected shortly to submit a report to the council, with recommendations.

Will Give Up Job To Be Near Son

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Lucille Doolefield, New York fur model, decided today to give up her job in Gotham and move to Illinois just to be near a 6-year old son who "don't like her."

She made up her mind after hearing the boy's opinion of her in superior court.

"I don't like her. She's caused too much trouble for my daddy," he told Judge Rudolph Desort.

The lad was brought to Chicago from his home at Rockford, Ill., where the first Mrs. Doolefield charged her divorced husband and his second wife were keeping the boy from her.

Processing Tax Injunctions Are Allowed To Stand

Two Federal Judges Deny Government Motion To Dissolve Them

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Temporary injunctions restraining the collection of millions of dollars in processing taxes due in an installment July 1 were permitted to stand today, when two federal judges denied a government motion to dissolve them.

The denial was based, Judges James H. Wilkerson and Charles E. Woodward said, on a rule of the court that such a motion "must be addressed to the Judge who granted the injunction or in whose court there is custody of the property."

Federal Judge John P. Barnes issued the injunctions last August, on pleas of Wilson and company, Armour and company, the Illinois Meat company, Swift and company and the Quaker Oats company, all affected by taxing provisions of the AAA.

After reading the opinion, United States district Attorney Michael L. Igoe stated he will file motions to dissolve all 24 of the temporary injunctions involved in the tax litigation before Judge Barnes probably early next week.

If Judge Barnes overrules the motions, an immediate appeal will be taken to the United States circuit court of appeals, Igoe indicated.

SON-IN-LAW OF IL DUCE DROPS FIRST BOMBS

Haile Selassie Calls 10,000,000 Troops Into Action

By The Associated Press

The Italian high command in East Africa last night ordered troops across the Mareb river into East Africa as a measure of "defense" and declared both Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to be under full martial law.

The Italian air fleet struck out in a surprise offensive at dawn yesterday and bombed the Ethiopian town of Aduwa as the long awaited hostilities between the two countries got under way.

In a proclamation issued at Asmara, General Emilio De Bono, commander of the Italian Colonial troops, called on the tribes along the Ethiopian-Eritrean border to invoke the aid of God for an early victorious end to "the war which we make for the triumph of justice."

After the aerial raid yesterday, Ethiopia claimed that Red Cross hospitals, housing sick and injured, were targets for the bombs and that civilians were killed, including women and children.

After previous denials, Italy admitted the bombardment Thursday night, but said it was in reprisal for an artillery attack upon a recomoitering border aerial squadron.

Count Gallezzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, dropped the first bombs on Aduwa, Italy's "verdun," where the Europeans were routed by Ethiopians 40 years ago.

Official circles in Rome said that only an artillery fortress was bombed and that Ethiopian casualties were unknown. There were no Italian losses.

Emperor Haile Selassie called a general mobilization, affecting an estimated 10,000,000 men, women and children. Despite an official report the Italian minister was given his passports, they were withheld and a special train for him was cancelled. He will be allowed to remain at least until Consular agents in the interior arrive here to join him.

Geneva considers the two nations at war and officials of the league were worried lest it spread. Italy has made known she would not formally declare war, since she considers her program a "colonial expedition."

Fighting was reported under way near Aduwa, with conflicting reports from the scene of operations.

In a protest to the League of Nations Haile Selassie said 78 bombs were dropped upon Aduwa, where Ethiopia administered a crushing defeat to Italy 40 years ago. He said 15 houses were destroyed there and 100 at Adigrat.

Italian infantry was said to be retreating near Aduwa under the cover of airplanes by the Reuters (British) news agency correspondent.

The exchange Telegraph Agency reported in London 1,700 persons were killed and wounded in the bombardment of Aduwa, but it was said in

Policeman Is Shot, Killed By Bandit In Union Station

Robber Escapes With $5,400 Restaurant Receipts In Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A lone robber today shot and killed a policeman in Union Station and escaped with $5,400 in restaurant receipts the officer was guarding.

William Stringfellow, 50, a veteran traffic policeman, was shot twice before he could draw his gun. The shots startled hundreds of persons passing through the busy railroad terminal in downtown Chicago.

The gunman seized the bag containing the money from John Beahan, 32, a cashier for the Harvey restaurant, and ran outside to join several confederates waiting in a car. All escaped.

Stringfellow was deliberately slain, Beahan said. The officer and Beahan were walking up the ramp to the street when they noticed a man who appeared to be tying his shoe lace. Suddenly he straightened up and fired rapidly twice.

Beahan threw himself to the pavement as the officer fell fatally wounded. He lost his grip on the bag and the bandit grabbed it and disappeared, Beahan told police.

REFERENDUM ON POTATO CONTROL LAW PROPOSED

WALLACE SAYS LAW CANNOT BE ENFORCED

Farmers Demand That Program For Spuds Be Carried Out

By Herry Greene

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Stepping into a torrid hearing, called to discuss the controverted potato control law, Secretary Wallace today answered shouts of "nullification" with a proposal for a referendum to see whether a control program is desired.

Five hundred farmers, gathered in the agriculture department auditorium, heard sharp rebukes tossed at those in charge. Roars of protest were thrown against Wallace's statement yesterday that he intended to "avoid" enforcing the potato law. Many farmers loudly demanded that the tax-control program for "spuds" be carried out.

Late in the day Senator Bailey (D. N. C.) who had criticized Secretary Wallace sharply, replied to the referendum suggestion by stating that it had been disapproved by congress.

Bailey said congress considered the referendum plan carefully for months and then decided that it should not be included in the law.

Wallace stepped suddenly and unexpectedly into the auditorium, saying he desired to explain his bombshell remarks of yesterday. Greeted coolly by the audience as he entered, he left amid an almost complete silence.

Under attack repeatedly during the morning, Wallace told the farmers at the afternoon session that "my own personal attitude has nothing whatever to do with enforcement of an act of congress."

Budget officials, he said, now are considering a request for funds for enforcement of the law. The compulsory potato control, he said, could be made to work if the vast majority of growers wanted it, but he couldn't visualize how bootlegging could be stopped.

Wallace added that his objections had no bearing on enforcement of the law if money was available, but that they might have a bearing on his recommendations to congress for modification of the act.

"You can't enforce laws that go against the will of the majority," Wallace said.

"We've paid a great deal more attention to the type of projects we're going to carry through. And through it all we've kept in the foreground that these aren't just any 3,500,000 people we've got to put to work, but specific John Smiths and Bill Jones."

Italy Has Nearly 350,000 Soldiers In Africa, Claim

Rome, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Italy, it was estimated reliably today, has nearly 350,000 soldiers in Africa or on their way.

A big air force, much motorized equipment and the most modern arms have been sent. Some 200,000 troops are known to have sailed from Italian ports. There are 30,000 troops on the and transports are waiting to take still more.

Native troops in Eritera and Somaliland are estimated by military officials at 60,000 and there are reports many men have been sent to Eritera from Libya.

This large army, military experts said, is not excessive, since it will have to combat "1,000,000" Ethiopians on their own ground.

Airplanes estimated to number 500 are divided among Eritrea, Libya and Somaliland. The latest relief report was that one cruiser, two destroyers and two gunboats are in the Red Sea with five smaller units in Libyan waters.

AFFIRMATIVE GOP PROGRAM IS PROMISED

Theodore Christianson Opens Attack On Administration

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Speaking with the authority of the high Republican command, Rep. Theodore Christianson of Minnesota levelled a return fire today at three western tour speeches of President Roosevelt, calling them "the opening gun of his campaign for reelection."

At the request of National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, however, Christianson pledged in a speech broadcast on a national network, that the Republican party "rededicated to the principles of constructive liberalism would not "rest its case on Democratic derelictions but will offer a positive and affirmative program."

Though centering his barrage on the administration's agricultural policies—extolled by the president in a recent address at Fremont, Neb.—Christianson also attacked its spending and the invitation to liberals to unite with the new dealers.

"The fundamental error of the administration" said Christianson was not in adopting a program for adjusting an agricultural economy disrupted by the world war but in regarding the AAA "as the final solution of the farm problem."

The farmers of the nation have accepted the AAA only as a "stopgap," he added. "The future of farming calls for increased, not reduced production; for the development of markets rather than the restriction of output."

He said New Deal claims of a $313,000,000 increase in income for farmers over 1934 was "nothing to write home about" as the sum represented a gain of only 5 per cent.

ARMS EMBARGO IS PLANNED BY UNITED STATES

Secretary Hull Will Act When War Is Declared

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A proclamation for clamping an embargo on munitions shipments to Italy and Ethiopia was drafted tentatively at the state department today as an extraordinary step toward insuring continued American neutrality.

Only official confirmation that the undeclared war raging in Africa was an "outbreak of war" within the meaning of the new neutrality act was awaited by Secretary Hull and his aides before recommending to President Roosevelt the issuance of the arms embargo directed by that statute.

The chief executive, cruising on a warship in the Pacific, was kept fully informed of Italo-Ethiopian developments by Hull. But the secretary declined any comment on movements of Rome's modern legions beyond assuring newsmen that the government was prepared, fully and adequately, for immediate action in any emergency.

Beside the arms embargo, an official determination that "a state of war" exists also would authorize Mr. Roosevelt to issue a proclamation warning all American citizens against traveling on vessels of either belligerent nation, except on his own risk. Issuance of that proclamation would affect American travel only on Italian liners, since Ethiopia has no merchant marine.

Hull, assisted by Joseph C. Green, chief of the office of arms and munitions control, was the author of the tentative embargo proclamation violation of which would be punishable by a fine of $10,000 and five years imprisonment.

Once the proclamation is issued, the neutrality act provides that it "shall be unlawful for any American vessel to carry any arms, ammunitions, or implements of war to any port of the belligerent countries named in the proclamation as being in war or to any neutral port for transshipment to, or for the use of, a belligerent country."

Details of the proposed proclamation were closely guarded, but well informed observers believed it was confined to the "arms, munitions, and implements of war" already designated by the president under provisions of the act setting up the national munitions control board.

WORLD SERIES WEATHER

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Cubs and Tigers and the 50,000 fans who will watch them resume world series warfare tomorrow at Wrigley Field, may expect weather just a little warmer than the frigid blasts that swept Navin Field in Detroit yesterday.

Temperatures in the middle forties during game time were predicted tonight by J. R. Lloyd, forecaster for the U. S. department of of agriculture here. The temperature was expected to drop to freezing early tomorrow morning, but Lloyd said there would be a gradual rise during the day, with plenty of sunshine.

"UNOFFICIAL WAR" HAS BEEN DECLARED; TROOPS ORDERED ACROSS MAREB

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE MAY BOYCOTT ITALY

League Of Nations Is Discussing Problem How To Stop War

By Wade Werner
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Geneva, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The possibility of economic and financial sanctions against Italy was seriously discussed by the League of Nations tonight as it tackled the problem of how to stop warfare it failed to prevent.

This discussion took on a direct turn when press reports from Paris said Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Premier Pierre Laval of France had tentatively agreed upon an economic boycott against Italy if she is declared the aggressor.

British circles indicated the first duty of the League council, called into urgent session Saturday, will be to decide whether the world is faced with a case of unprovoked aggression or war. If the first is the case, sanctions under punitive article 16 will automatically operate against the aggressor and the League assembly will be convoked to discuss their application.

Proof of how the war events are moving with appalling rapidity was seen in the decision of the Council committee of 13 to notify Ethiopia that it is now useless to send neutral observers to the Ethiopian frontier to forestall hostilities.

A protest from Emperor Haile Selassie, who had repeatedly expressed confidence the League would protect Ethiopia, said Italian airplanes roaring over Aduwa dropped 78 bombs, damaged the Red Cross hospital and killed civilians.

(This was officially denied by the Italian Embassy in London.)

Officials of the League said war between the countries was a fact, although not officially declared. Fears were expressed lest the fighting spread into Europe.

An urgent session of the full council was called for Saturday and the council's committee of 13 met this afternoon for a preliminary discussion of the situation.

A scheme to send a commission of neutral observers by air to the troubled zone was found impractical.

On the vital point of determining who is the aggressor centered the council's gravest responsibility. A telegram from Rome convinced League officials Premier Mussolini plans to contend Ethiopia and Ethiopia only can be regarded as the aggressor.

A clear decision, officials apparently believed, would be reached on this question, regardless of what may happen.

Unconfirmed information in international circles was that Laval will tell Eden France would come to the help of Great Britain in case British ships were attacking while in defense of the League covenant, but France wants an understanding that Britian would come to the aid of France in any similar future emergency.

France, it was stated, will announce she is bound by the covenant when the covenant is put into effective operation and consequently is bound by sanctions, if they are applied.

The council committee of 13 is expected shortly to submit a report to the council, with recommendations.

Italo-Ethiopian "War" Briefs By Associated Press

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Several shipping lines announced today they had abandoned the East Africa route, through the Suez Canal, because of high war risk insurance.

Companies also reported few travelers showed an inclination to go that way.

Athens, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Three military classes were ordered to report for service as a precautionary measure today, and the war minister was reported to be considering a mobilization.

Piraeus insurance brokers increased rates in certain Mediterranean "danger zones," especially near Italy and Egyptian waters, Greek shipowners ordered ships in the Far East to return around the Cape of Good Hope instead of by the Suez Canal, and told captains not to take cargoes to or from Italy.

Jerusalem, Oct. 3.—(AP)—(Palcor Agency)—King Abdul Ibn Saud of Saudi-Arabia has called a Pan-Arab congress in November to discuss Arab interests in view of the war danger, the Arab press reported.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Sections of the first battalion of the Machester Regiment of the British army, totaling 800 men and 25 officers, embarked today for Suez.

The troops, members of units from the Islands of Jamaica and Bermuda, will reach Southampton Oct. 14, where the 100 wives and children will be landed before the departure for Africa.

Nice, France, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Three hundred Italians left here today by special train for Rome, bound for service in East Africa.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Police guard were placed at the Embassies and Consulates of Italy and Great Britain today to guard against any possibility of incidents in connection with the Italo-Ethopian situation. It was expected the guards would be maintained throughout the conflict.

The Italian consulate here stated the consulates throughout Argentina had received yesterday and today hundreds of offers from Italians residing in Argentina who wished to volunteer for service, but only a small number were expected to be accepted. A second contingent of volunteers will sail next week following the 220 who left Tuesday.

SON-IN-LAW OF IL DUCE DROPS FIRST BOMBS

Haile Selassie Calls 10,000,000 Troops Into Action

By The Associated Press

The Italian high command in East Africa last night ordered troops across the Mareb river into East Africa as a measure of "defense" and declared both Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to be under full martial law.

The Italian air fleet struck out in a surprise offensive at dawn yesterday and bombed the Ethiopian town of Aduwa as the long awaited hostilities between the two countries got under way.

In a proclamation issued at Asmara, General Emilio De Bono, commander of the Italian Colonial troops, called on the tribes along the Ethiopian-Eritrean border to invoke the aid of God for an early victorious end to "the war which we make for the triumph of justice."

After the aerial raid yesterday, Ethiopia claimed that Red Cross hospitals, housing sick and injured, were targets for the bombs and that civilians were killed, including women and children.

After previous denials, Italy admitted the bombardment Thursday night, but said it was in reprisal for an artillery attack upon a recommoitering border aerial squadron.

Count Gallezzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, dropped the first bombs on Aduwa, Italy's "verdun," where the Europeans were routed by Ethiopians 40 years ago.

Official circles in Rome said that only an artillery fortress was bombed and that Ethiopian casualties were unknown. There were no Italian losses.

Emperor Haile Selassie called a general mobilization, affecting an estimated 10,000,000 men, women and children. Despite an official report the Italian minister was given his passports, they were withheld and a special train for him was cancelled. He will be allowed to remain at least until Consular agents in the interior arrive here to join him.

Geneva considers the two nations at war and officials of the league were worried lest it spread. Italy has made known she would not formally declare war, since she considers her program a "colonial expedition."

Fighting was reported under way near Aduwa, with conflicting reports from the scene of operations.

In a protest to the League of Nations Haile Selassie said 78 bombs were dropped upon Aduwa, where Ethiopia administered a crushing defeat to Italy 40 years ago. He said 15 houses were destroyed there and 100 at Adigrat.

Italian infantry was said to be retreating near Aduwa under the cover of airplanes by the Reuters (British) news agency correspondent.

The exchange Telegraph Agency reported in London 1,700 persons were killed and wounded in the bombardment of Aduwa, but it was said in

PEORIA SLAYER LOSES FIGHT IN SUPREME COURT

Gerald Thompson's Only Hope Rests With Governor

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Gerald Thompson's only hope to escape death in the electric chair Oct. 15 for the murder of Mildred Hallmark, young Peoria cafeteria hostess June 17, tonight rested with Governor Horner and the state pardon board.

While the Peoria youth who was convicted of slaying the girl and throwing her body into a ditch in an outlying cemetery waited in "death row" at Joliet penitentiary, the Illinois supreme court today refused to consider the case.

Although there was no word here from Ren Thurman, the youth's counsel, as to whether he would seek clemency from the governor and pardon board, it was expected Thompson's attorney would make such a plea. The next scheduled meeting of the board was set for Oct. 8 here.

If Thurman turns to the governor in an effort to save his client, Mr. Horner may have two decisions to make in the case. First, whether to commute the death sentence, and if he decides not to do that, who will officiate at the execution.

Col. Frank Whipp, the Joliet warden, was scheduled to serve, but because he asked to be relieved of duty the day before the execution is scheduled, the governor has indicated he will comply with Whipp's request and name another warden by Oct. 14.

The supreme court denied Thompson's motion for a writ of supersedeas which would have stayed execution of sentence until the high court considered a writ of error. The decision was handed down without comment.

Thurman filed the motion Tuesday. Under court rules of procedure the justices could not act on the motion until today, but very few persons connected with the court expected an immediate decision.

By denying the motion, the court destroyed his last chance in the high court to escape the chair. The justices, by their decision, eliminated the necessity of action on Thompson's motion to sue as a poor person.

U. S. Judge Rules Adjustment Act Constitutional

Became Valid August 24 The Day Congress Added Amendments

Kansas City, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis held today the agricultural adjustment act became constitutional August 24—the day congress amended it.

He held the act invalid as to tax levies made under it prior to the amendment.

Thus he stamped the first judicial O. K. on New Deal legislation drafted to clinch the constitutionality of the act amid court attacks the nation over.

The ruling was in the form of a memorandum opinion on the act and the process taxing provision. It was given in a case involving $3,000,000 in taxes and 24 Missouri millers, meat packers and tobacco manufacturers fighting collection.

The jurist's point is that congress could not make legal by an amendment the enforcement of an act prior to an amendment. He found the act invalid originally because of an unauthorized delegation of legislative (taxing) powers.

"The rates now in force, therefore, are the rates fixed by congress and not rates fixed by the secretary of agriculture," he said in a 32-page opinion.

Searlet Fever In State Spreading

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The public health department today announced that 217 new cases of scarlet fever were reported in Illinois last week, compared with 83 weekly cases at the end of August.

"Case reports have been registered from more than two-thirds of the counties during the past three weeks and it is probable that the disease is present now in practically every county," said Dr. Frank J. Jirka, health director.

"Scarlet fever was never more prevalent in Illinois as during the last seasonal peak of the disease in April. Since the middle of September, when the usual seasonal upward trend set in, case reports have been greater in number than for the corresponding period last year."

Nellie Tipton Muench Takes Witness Stand and Denies Planning Kelley Kidnaping

By Howard W. Flieger
Associated Press Staff Writer

Mexico, Mo., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Denial of Nellie Tipton Muench, former St. Louis society matron, that she "fingered" a 1931 kidnaping, reached a climax today with her own vehement witness stand declarations of innocence.

Mrs. Muench, her bright red hair contrasting with the wan paleness of her face, sobbed loudly as friends added the weight of their testimony to her defense, staunchly re-iterated her story under cross examination, then paraded from the courtroom on the arms of her husband after the defense unexpectedly closed its case.

It had been expected that counsel for Mrs. Muench, accused of planning the abduction of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, wealthy and socially prominent St. Louis physician, would require at least another day to present their testimony.

The tiny county seat courtroom was packed with curious but quiet women, as Mrs. Muench, attractive member of an influential Missouri family today told a jury of farmers, that "I am not guilty," but overlooking claiming as her own a son whose birth she announced six weeks ago.

The oversight, whether deliberate or by accident, came in the face of court action in St. Louis county, wherein a Pennsylvania servant girl, Anna Ware, claimed as her illigitimate son the baby whose birth was announced by Mrs. Muench as "a gift from God." The baby, innocent creator of interest in the Muench case, has not been in court with the defedant since her trial opened Monday.

Mrs. Muench, trimly clad and carrying herself with poise, spoke calmly as she branded as untrue, every phase of state evidence.

Catagorically she denied visiting a St. Louis county resort where Adolph Fiedler, the proprietor, said the kidnap plot was hatched, and in rapid order she denied acquaintance with any of the other accused or convicted defendants in the Kelley case.

The defense opened its case today with a stream of witnesses who testified that the reputation of Fiedler, whose story of the Kelley kidnaping resulted in the indictment of Mrs. Muench was "bad." Then moving swiftly, counsel, through witnesses, laid a foundation for Mrs. Muench's firm denial of all the evidence against her.

The state's case, ridiculed by the defendant in her testimony and subsequent testimony of her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, was substantially that Mrs. Muench was the "goldie" who gathered with Angelo Rosegrant and Felix McDonald, both convicted, and with others to make plans for kidnaping Dr. Kelley in April 1931.

The defense rested shortly before 2 p. m., after having taken less than a day to submit its case which hinged chiefly on the testimony of Mrs. Muench and her husband. Judge W. C. Hughes adjourned court until 9 a. m., to permit the state time to assemble its rebuttal testimony.

Will Give Up Job To Be Near Son

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Lucille Doellefield, New York fur model, decided today to give up her job in Gotham and move to Illinois just to be near a 6-year old son who "don't like her."

She made up her mind after hearing the boy's opinion of her in superior court.

"I don't like her. She's caused too much trouble for my daddy," he told Judge Rudolph Desort.

The lad was brought to Chicago from his home at Rockford, Ill., where the first Mrs. Doellefield charged, her divorced husband and his second wife were keeping the boy from her.

Processing Tax Injunctions Are Allowed To Stand

Two Federal Judges Deny Government Motion To Dissolve Them

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Temporary injunctions restraining the collection of millions of dollars in processing taxes due in an installment July 1 were permitted to stand today, when two federal judges denied a government motion to dissolve them.

The denial was based, Judges James H. Wilkerson and Charles E. Woodward said, on a rule of the court that such a motion "must be addressed to the Judge who granted the injunction or in whose court there is custody of the property."

Federal Judge John P. Barnes issued the injunctions last August on pleas of Wilson and company, Armour and company, the Illinois Meat company, Swift and company and the Quaker Oats company, all affected by taxing provisions of the AAA.

After reading the opinion, United States district Attorney Michael L. Igoe stated he will file motions to dissolve all 24 of the temporary injunctions involved in the tax litigation before Judge Barnes probably early next week.

If Judge Barnes overrules the motions, an immediate appeal will be taken to the United States circuit court of appeals, Igoe indicated.

Policeman Is Shot, Killed By Bandit In Union Station

Robber Escapes With $5,400 Restaurant Receipts In Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A lone robber today shot and killed a policeman in Union Station and escaped with $5,400 in restaurant receipts the officer was guarding.

William Stringfellow, 50, a veteran traffic policeman, was shot twice before he could draw his gun. The shots startled hundreds of persons passing through the busy railroad terminal in downtown Chicago.

The gunman seized the bag containing the money from John Beahan, 32, a cashier for the Harvey restaurant, and ran outside to join several confederates waiting in a car. All escaped.

Stringfellow was deliberately slain, Beahan said. The officer and Beahan were walking up the ramp to the street when they noticed a man who appeared to be tying his shoe lace. Suddenly he straightened up and fired rapidly twice.

Beahan threw himself to the pavement as the officer fell fatally wounded. He lost his grip on the bag and the bandit grabbed it and disappeared, Beahan told police.

Mrs. Alvin Karpis Sues For Divorce

Mrs. Karpis asked that her maiden name of Dorothy Slayman be restored. She was reported to be employed in a beauty parlor here.

The Community Cannery

Few relief projects have been of such practical and outstanding value to any community as the cannery now in operation in the old Morton school building. The enterprise is a real measure of conservation, saving surplus fruit and vegetables for use during the coming winter in families where the problem of providing food is at all times a difficult one. The people who need this food have been quick to see the advantages of having it safely preserved.

The cannery serves two purposes. It gives the individual family the advantage of securing an adequate food supply from the home garden and from produce obtained in other ways. Those who could not otherwise afford to can their fruit and vegetables and would have to let go to waste what they could not immediately consume, and now assured of getting the full benefit of what they have raised on their land.

One can in five is reserved for the general relief stores, to be distributed to those who have no means of supplying their own food. Every client is quite willing to pay this toll for the privilege of having his canning done at the plant. The cannery also cares for the produce grown in the community gardens, which is also put in [illegible] stores.

It would be a queer person indeed who would not meet such an enterprise half way and do his part toward the preparation of the vegetables and fruit. Yet such there seems to be. One man brought some apples to the factory and was informed that if he would wash the fruit and cut it up, it would be canned for him. He had not done this and appeared unwilling to do it. The apples were given to him, but he said he would give them away as it was "too much trouble," to get them ready for the cannery.

But this man is a rare exception. The majority of those who are on relief are grateful for the cannery and its splendid service to themselves and the community.

Where Payroll Taxes Will Go

When the new Social Security law gets into full swing, if it survives the test of constitutionality, some two billion dollars a year will be rolling into the federal treasury from payroll taxes. That the canny politicians would overlook such a bet could hardly be expected. Fact is, plans are already under way to use this huge income in a way that will bring practical benefit to somebody.

It is hoped to use the money on vast public works projects, to absorb the unemployed in future years. The fact that this money is intended to provide old age benefits for workers and that the drain on it will increase as more people reach the retirement age and begin to draw benefits, does not seem to have entered into the calculations.

To use the payroll tax income for public works would be to sink it in unproductive enterprises and compel the government to refinance the security funds from bonds. The security fund would be similar to the reserves built up by insurance companies and should be as safely invested. If it is to be spent lavishly and the government bonded to secure its repayment, the whole system will collapse of its own weight, and the money taken from wage earners will have been wasted. If this is the brand of administration the new social insurance system is to have, there is no question that it will become a political football.

So This is War

After months of backing and filling, but steady preparation for conflict, Italy has started the drive into Ethiopia. The bombing of Aduwa, scene of a disastrous defeat of Italian forces forty years ago, was an act of revenge. It has been known for sometime that Italy would spring first upon this border point to even up old scores with the Ethiopians.

But the first day's fighting was evidently not as successful as the bombing. Italian troops are said to have retreated after a heavy brush with the fierce riflemen of Emperor Haile Selassie. The war is begun, but not won.

Selassie's soldiers lurk behind trees and rocks, perch on mountains and hide in the jungles. It is stifling in the desert thru which Italy has chosen to drive. Even during the mobilization on the shores of the Red Sea, the water supply ran low and had to be replenished from tank steamers hauling it from Egypt. Wells were drilled, but the water was nauseating. The ration was two pints per day per man, not enough to meet human needs in the terrible heat. Sickness sent hundreds of Italian soldiers back to the home land.

And this is the war in which Mussolini takes a pride. He may conquer Ethiopia, but it will cost him more in men and money than he can ever recover. Already a fifth of the Italian gold reserve is gone, and in the region where the war must be fought gasoline is a dollar a gallon. And it takes gasoline to fly airplanes over defenseless cities and villages.

Then there's the League of Nations, probable sanctions and the British navy at the Suez canal. Nobody envies Mussolini his position, but there is deep sympathy for the young men who will be sacrificed to fight his war of ruthless conquest.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Packing Moguls May Have Been Kidding Government About Profits . . . Meat Will Rise in Price, Then Drop Before Election . . . Cabinet Members Hard to Find . . . One Non-Politician Manages to Break Through.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Reconnaissance along the pork chop front reveals an indication that certain packers have been kidding the government as to the amount of their profits.

Also, though roast pork, bacon and eggs, and ham sandwiches will cost more this winter than they do now, prices probably will start dropping next summer and be materially lower by election time.

The AAA's first public hearing on a proposed adjustment program concerned the corn-hog situation. Thanks mostly to drouth, there'll be about 47 pounds of hog products available per person in the marketing year beginning Nov. 1 instead of the normal consumption of 83 pounds.

With no adjustment program, there should be about 62 pounds in the marketing year beginning next fall, meaning lower prices, which should begin to appear earlier.

Meanwhile, the AAA is required by law to operate in two-year programs and fears if something isn't done to keep down corn production there'll be a subsequent hog production in excess of normal consumption.

Six Million Bobs Up

Packers' profits, often the subject of kicks from housewives on meat strike, were represented as $29,550,000 for 1934 by packers themselves at the hearings.

That figure, which is all the government ever had to go on—being unable to examine packers' books—was the total reported to the Bureau of Animal Industry under requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

But late in the afternoon an AAA official stated that the figure had been revised to $36,053,331. The only explanation given for this sudden change was that the profit figure for one company (608 companies reported) had been revised.

* * *

Profits Go Soaring

The new figure means that packers last year made their highest total profits since 1929 and that the profit per dollar of sales was 1.84 cents—highest percentage in 10 years. Evidence indicated big packers had been doing very well, while many small packers were suffering.

(Note to housewives: More information on packers' profits will be brought out by the Federal Trade Commission investigation of food industries. Meanwhile watch to see whether the AAA corn-hog program lives up to Secretary Wallace's promise to balance production with domestic consumption needs.)

No Pictures for "Subs"

Photographers assigned to take pictures of the first meeting of the distinguished new National Munitions Board, composed of five cabinet members, were told they couldn't do that. The reason was that, although Secretaries Hull and Roper of State and Commerce were there, Secretary Morgenthau—being in Europe—had delegated Undersecretary of the Treasury Coolidge, Secretary Dern had delegated General MacArthur, who had delegated Gen. George Simonds, and Secretary Swanson had sent Admiral William Standley.

Non-Politician Edges In

When Robert E. Frear, a Republican from Cincinnati, was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission, a lot was done for the morale of career men in the government who still serve in large numbers here despite the political battles which rage above and about them.

The career men were shown that a non-politician could break through the ranks. At the same time, it was indicated that the administration meant to make an active force of the FTC.

Frear came here about 10 years ago from Cincinnati law practice to join the ICC's valuation staff. He helped Ferdinand Pecora investigate railroad financing, served as an expert with Transportation Co-ordinator Joe Eastman, and was borrowed this year by Chairman Burt Wheeler of the Senate interstate commerce committee to help on important transportation legislation.

Senator Donahey and several Ohio congressmen joined with Eastman in backing Frear for FTC.

Community Cannery in Morton School Saves Relief Clients' Food

Canned food, thousands of cans of food, all stacked in neat piles awaiting delivery to the owners! This unusual sight is the output of a local industry that has been in operation for a month. The industry is the Emergency Relief Community Cannery, located in the old Morton school building in the southeast part of the city. Here forty to fifty workers are busy canning every variety of vegetable and fruit that Morgan county soil will produce.

Thus far 21,000 cans have been filled. The vacuum pack process is used in the canning, and everything at the plant is done systematically. Perrin Moore is supervisor of the cannery and C. C. Scott is supervisor of the community gardens, from which some of the vegetables canned in the plant come.

Keep One in Five

However, the majority of the food is brought in by relief clients, produced from their home gardens and orchards or given to them. All this food is canned for the individual clients, the Emergency Relief commission, taking one can in five to add to the general store for distribution to clients who have no means of producing anything of their own.

Mr. Moore explained the processes followed in the plant. When the produce is brought in, it is weighed, and the name of the client, his number and the quantity of produce recorded on a ticket in duplicate. One ticket goes to the office and another stays with the food thruout the process. Up to 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning 172 clients had brought food to the plant. Wednesday evening two truck loads of tomatoes were received and a large quantity of beets.

Preparation Room

The food first goes thru the preparation room, where it is cut up and made ready for the cans. It is then placed in the tin cans, which are either No. 2 or No. 3 size. In the canning room the food is heated in the cans in a large boiler, so that all the air is taken out of the cans. Then it is sealed and placed in the big pressure cookers, of which there are six kept in constant operation. The cookers hold 24 No. 2 cans or 18 No. 3 cans each.

The food sealed in the cans is thoroly cooked under steam pressure. Then the cookers are taken from the gas plates and allowed to cool until the pressure subsides. The cans are then taken out and placed in a vat of cold water, where they are cooled. The cooling contracts the food in the can and causes a vacuum to form at the top, as the air has all been removed in the process.

Most of the food is placed in the cans raw, but corn is thoroly cooked before being placed in the cans. Beets are also cooked first, after which the same process is employed as for the other foods. Each can is stamped with the number of the client to whom it belongs, and the toll is taken out and stored separate from the rest of the allotment. The can also bears the name of the product and the date of canning.

Storage on Second Floor

The upper floor of the building is being used for storage. The I. E. R. C. toll and food canned from the community gardens are stored in separate piles. The cans belonging to clients are also placed in piles, with the number of the clinte marked on the floor at the foot of the pile. Some piles contain 400 cans of food, on which the large families of the owners will live during the coming winter. An allotment of forty cans per member of the family has been observed.

Car Load of Cans

"When we started the plant," Mr Moore said, "we thought only one room would be needed, but we are now occupying the entire building. We recently got a car load of cans, 100,000 in all, and we will need more. We are canning everything that is brought to us as it comes in season, corn, beans, carrots, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, fruit of all kinds. Later we will can hominy, and other fall products."

The preparation room contained baskets of green tomatoes, beets, carrots, apples and numerous other products of the farm. A corps of workers in this room were kept busy and there was plenty of work ahead. The project is expected to provide the staple food for Morgan county relief families this winter.

Later the factory will can meat, as well as fruit and vegetables. Much of the produce brought to the plant would have gone to waste, as families were unable to care for it so that it would be preserved for winter consumption.

Screw Worm Control Worker Visits City

W. J. Spicer Investigating Two Reported Infestations in Neighboring Places

W. J. Spicer of San Antonio, Texas, who is connected with the U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, visited this city yesterday in search of reported areas of screw worm infestation. These worms live in the wounds on animals, and if not checked, will cause death to the infected animal. The screw worm fly lays its eggs in any wound, cut, scratch or tick bite, and the larvae feed on the living tissues.

Screw worm infestations are reported in the Pittsfield and New Berlin communities. The government is interested in controlling this pest, as it can cause considerable loss among farm animals. The worms resemble maggots, but are unlike them in that they eat only the living tissues.

An infected animal grows thin and tries to hide itself away to get away from the flies that lay eggs in the wound. Sometimes sick animals are hard to find and cannot receive the benefit of early treatment. They should be separated from the rest of the herd in a pasture close to the house and given daily treatment.

Infected wounds should be cleaned and filled with benzol to kill the worms. Cotton plugs in the wounds confine the worms and make them breathe the benzol gas. The wound should then be given a light coating of pine-tar oil to keep away the flies and hasten healing.

The Community Cannery

Few relief projects have been of such practical and outstanding value to any community as the cannery now in operation in the old Morton school building. The enterprise is a real measure of conservation, saving surplus fruit and vegetables for use during the coming winter in families where the problem of providing food is at all times a difficult one. The people who need this food have been quick to see the advantages of having it safely preserved.

The cannery serves two purposes. It gives the individual family the advantage of securing an adequate food supply from the home garden and from produce obtained in other ways. Those who could not otherwise afford to can their fruit and vegetables and would have to let go to waste what they could not immediately consume, and now assured of getting the full benefit of what they have raised on their land.

One can in five is reserved for the general relief stores, to be distributed to those who have no means of supplying their own food. Every client is quite willing to pay this toll for the privilege of having his canning done at the plant. The cannery also cares for the produce grown in the community gardens, which is also put in [illegible] of stores.

It would be a queer person indeed who would not meet such an enterprise half way and do his part toward the preparation of the vegetables and fruit. Yet such there seems to be. One man brought some apples to the factory and was informed that if he would wash the fruit and cut it up, it would be canned for him. He had not done this and appeared unwilling to do it. The apples were given to him, but he said he would give them away as it was "too much trouble," to get them ready for the cannery.

But this man is a rare exception. The majority of those who are on relief are grateful for the cannery and its splendid service to themselves and the community.

Where Payroll Taxes Will Go

When the new Social Security law gets into full swing, if it survives the test of constitutionality, some two billion dollars a year will be rolling into the federal treasury from payroll taxes. That the canny politicians would overlook such a bet could hardly be expected. Fact is, plans are already under way to use this huge income in a way that will bring practical benefit to somebody.

It is hoped to use the money on vast public works projects, to absorb the unemployed in future years. The fact that this money is intended to provide old age benefits for workers and that the drain on it will increase as more people reach the retirement age and begin to draw benefits, does not seem to have entered into the calculations.

To use the payroll tax income for public works would be to sink it in unproductive enterprises and compel the government to refinance the security funds from bonds. The security fund would be similar to the reserves built up by insurance companies and should be as safely invested. If it is to be spent lavishly and the government bonded to secure its repayment, the whole system will collapse of its own weight, and the money taken from wage earners will have been wasted. If this is the brand of administration the new social insurance system is to have, there is no question that it will become a political football.

So This is War

After months of backing and filling, but steady preparation for conflict, Italy has started the drive into Ethiopia. The bombing of Aduwa, scene of a disastrous defeat of Italian forces forty years ago, was an act of revenge. It has been known for sometime that Italy would spring first upon this border point to even up old scores with the Ethiopians.

But the first day's fighting was evidently not as successful as the bombing. Italian troops are said to have retreated after a heavy brush with the fierce riflemen of Emperor Haile Selassie. The war is begun, but not won.

Selassie's soldiers lurk behind trees and rocks, perch on mountains and hide in the jungles. It is stifling in the desert thru which Italy has chosen to drive. Even during the mobilization on the shores of the Red Sea, the water supply ran low and had to be replenished from tank steamers hauling it from Egypt. Wells were drilled, but the water was nauseating. The ration was two pints per day per man, not enough to meet human needs in the terrible heat. Sickness sent hundreds of Italian soldiers back to the home land.

And this is the war in which Mussolini takes a pride. He may conquer Ethiopia, but it will cost him more in men and money than he can ever recover. Already a fifth of the Italian gold reserve is gone, and in the region where the war must be fought gasoline is a dollar a gallon. And it takes gasoline to fly airplanes over defenseless cities and villages.

Then there's the League of Nations, probable sanctions, and the British navy at the Suez canal. Nobody envies Mussolini his position, but there is deep sympathy for the young men who will be sacrificed to fight his war of ruthless conquest.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Packing Moguls May Have Been Kidding Government About Profits . . . Meat Will Rise in Price, Then Drop Before Election . . . Cabinet Members Hard to Find . . . One Non-Politician Manages to Break Through.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Reconnaissance along the pork chop front reveals an indication that certain packers have been kidding the government as to the amount of their profits.

Also, though roast pork, bacon and eggs, and ham sandwiches will cost more this winter than they do now, prices probably will start dropping next summer and be materially lower by election time.

The AAA's first public hearing on a proposed adjustment program concerned the corn-hog situation. Thanks mostly to drouth, there'll be about 47 pounds of hog products available per person in the marketing year beginning Nov. 1 instead of the normal consumption of 83 pounds.

With no adjustment program, there should be about 62 pounds in the marketing year beginning next fall, meaning lower prices, which should begin to appear earlier.

Meanwhile, the AAA is required by law to operate in two-year programs and fears if something isn't done to keep down corn production there'll be a subsequent hog production in excess of normal consumption.

* * *

Six Million Bobs Up

Packers' profits, often the subject of kicks from housewives on meat strike, were represented as $29,550,000 for 1934 by packers themselves at the hearings.

That figure, which is all the government ever had to go on—being unable to examine packers' books—was the total reported to the Bureau of Animal Industry under requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

But late in the afternoon an AAA official stated that the figure had been revised to $36,053,331. The only explanation given for this sudden change was that the profit figure for one company (608 companies reported) had been revised.

* * *

Profits Go Soaring

The new figure means that packers last year made their highest total profits since 1929 and that the profit per dollar of sales was 1.84 cents—highest percentage in 10 years. Evidence indicated big packers had been doing very well, while many small packers were suffering.

(Note to housewives: More information on packers' profits will be brought out by the Federal Trade Commission investigation of food industries. Meanwhile watch to see whether the AAA corn-hog program lives up to Secretary Wallace's promise to balance production with domestic consumption needs.)

No Pictures for "Subs"

Photographers assigned to take pictures of the first meeting of the distinguished new National Munitions Board, composed of five cabinet members, were told they couldn't do that. The reason was that, although Secretaries Hull and Roper of State and Commerce were there, Secretary Morgenthau—being in Europe—had delegated Undersecretary of the Treasury Coolidge, Secretary Dern had delegated General MacArthur, who had delegated Gen. George Simonds, and Secretary Swanson had sent Admiral William Standley.

Non-Politician Edges In

When Robert E. Frear, a Republican from Cincinnati, was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission, a lot was done for the morale of career men in the government who still serve in large numbers here despite the political battles which rage above and about them.

The career men were shown that a non-politician could break through the ranks. At the same time, it was indicated that the administration meant to make an active force of the FTC.

Frear came here about 10 years ago from Cincinnati law practice to join the ICC's valuation staff. He helped Ferdinand Pecora investigate railroad financing, served as an expert with Transportation Co-ordinator Joe Eastman, and was borrowed this year by Chairman Burt Wheeler of the Senate interstate commerce committee to help on important transportation legislation.

Senator Donahey and several Ohio congressmen joined with Eastman in backing Frear for FTC.

Storage on Second Floor

The upper floor of the building is being used for storage. The I. E. R. C. toll and food canned from the community gardens are stored in separate piles. The cans belonging to clients are also placed in piles, with the number of the clinte marked on the floor at the foot of the pile. Some piles contain 400 cans of food, on which the large families of the owners will live during the coming winter. An allotment of forty cans per member of the family has been observed.

Car Load of Cans

"When we started the plant," Mr Moore said, "we thought only one room would be needed, but we are now occupying the entire building We recently got a car load of cans, 100,000 in all, and we will need more. We are canning everything that is brought to us as it comes in season, corn, beans, carrots, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, fruit of all kinds. Later we will can hominy, and other fall products."

The preparation room contained baskets of green tomatoes, beets, carrots, apples and numerous other products of the farm. A corps of workers in this room were kept busy and there was plenty of work ahead. The project is expected to provide the staple food for Morgan county relief families this winter.

Later the factory will can meat, as well as fruit and vegetables. Much of the produce brought to the plant would have gone to waste, as families were unable to care for it so that it would be preserved for winter consumption.

Screw Worm Control Worker Visits City

W. J. Spicer Investigating Two Reported Infestations in Neighboring Places

W. J. Spicer of San Antonio, Texas, who is connected with the U. S. Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, visited this city yesterday in search of reported areas of screw worm infestation. These worms live in the wounds on animals, and if not checked, will cause death to the infected animal. The screw worm fly lays its eggs in any wound, cut, scratch or tick bite, and the larvae feed on the living tissues.

Screw worm infestations are reported in the Pittsfield and New Berlin communities. The government is interested in controlling this pest, as it can cause considerable loss among farm animals. The worms resemble maggots, but are unlike them in that they eat only the living tissues.

An infected animal grows thin and tries to hide itself away to get away from the flies that lay eggs in the wound. Sometimes sick animals are hard to find and cannot receive the benefit of early treatment. They should be separated from the rest of the herd in a pasture close to the house and given daily treatment.

Infected wounds should be cleaned and filled with benzol to kill the worms. Cotton plugs in the wounds confine the worms and make them breathe the benzol gas. The wound should then be given a light coating of pine-tar oil to keep away the flies and hasten healing.

Joan Crawford's Bridal Smile

The movies' glamorous Joan Crawford looks as happy as a bride hopes to be in this picture, snapped as she arrived in New York for her marriage to Franchot Tone, an event that she scoffed at the day before with the remark, "We're too busy to marry".

Only One of Four Pinkstaff Sisters Alive to Carry on

Mary Ann, 73, Ill with Same Disease That Took Two Sisters, Remains

Lawrenceville, Ill.—(AP)—Death has claimed two more of the Pinkstaff sisters and focused attention on the single survivor of four women who kept until death a 60-year-old covenant that they would not marry.

The survivor—Mary Ann Pinkstaff, 73—is ill with pneumonia which recently took the lives of Clara Ann, 70, and Susie Ann, 86. Martha Ann died 40 years ago.

For the last quarter century Mary Ann, Clara Ann and Susie Ann, operated their 180-acre farm on the bank of the Wabash river. The farm had belonged to their father, and before that to his sire. No outside help was employed. Grueling outdoor farm labor indirectly led to the recent deaths, and illness.

Work in a hay field on a hot September day brought on exhaustion. Heavy colds followed; pneumonia quickly developed.

The no-marriage pledge was not taken through dearth of suitors. There were many. Susie Ann "kept company" with the same man for years, but refused to break the vow.

In recent years the sisters clung to the garb of the nineties. High top shoes, long flowing skirts, often of solid black but occasionally of flowered gingham or calico, stiff, starched bonnets, were their attire.

Strict accounting was kept of the profits from the farm and after each sale the three gathered around the fire-place and divided equally. Susie Ann was the manager. Mary Ann was the housekeeper and doer of chores and Clara Ann was in charge of the farm work. But when major harvest work came, all three went to the fields.

Thrift was the watchword of the German Pinkstaff "girls"—as they were known in Lawrence county—and neighbors talk of buried wealth, perhaps in gold. Their bank accounts were small.

Each spinster took her purse on shopping trips. It was sewed in a pocket in the first underskirt—each always wore several.

For 65 years the sisters lived in the same five-room frame farm house. In 1929 they bought a motor car. Clara Ann finally learned to drive, but for the most part kept to backroads. Main highways were too hazardous.

FIRE DAMAGES FARM DWELLING

James Powell Residence Catches Fire In Greene County; News Notes

Carrollton, Ill., Oct. 3.—The Carrollton fire department was called about 7:00 p. m. Wednesday to the farm home of James Powell, about 7½ miles west of this city. On arriving at the place they found two rooms of the frame dwelling in flames. Neighbors had removed all of the furniture from the other rooms, but all the furniture that was in the dining room was completely destroyed. The interior of three rooms was gutted with a loss estimated at $250.00 by Fire Chief Charlie Macfarlane.

As none of the Powell family was at home all day, the origin of the fire is unknown. The fire was under control in a half hour after the department arrived. This is the second mysterious fire in the immediate neighborhood in less than a year. Several months ago the home of the E. B. Goodnight family, directly across the road, was completely destroyed together with the hen houses and sheds, while the family were away from home. In this fire the Goodnight family lost everything they had except the clothes they were wearing.

At the district missionary meeting of Alton Presbytery, held at Carlinville Tuesday, Mrs. L. D. Stone of this city was elected presiding officer for the coming year. Mrs. Stone's husband, Rev. L. D. Stone, was elected moderator of Alton Presbytery.

News Notes.

James McPherson of White Hall was a business visitor here Tuesday and Wednesday.

B. W. Eldred, Dennis Vaughn, Lee Macfarlane and Elon Eldred motored to Fairmount, Collinsville and Monk's Mound Wednesday. On the return they visited friends in Alton.

P. J. Vaughn returned Sunday from New York City, where he attended the Louis-Baer bout.

Mayor W. Price Lindsey, who has been in Chicago with City Attorney Clement L. Smith, on matters concerning a PWA grant for a natural gas plant, returned here Monday. It was given out last week that this project together with similar projects for White Hall and Roodhouse had been allowed by the federal board, but it now appears that the grant for some reason is to be held up by the Chicago office.

Miss Wilma Day Bowie of the secretary of state office in Springfield spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowie.

William Woolford of Detroit, Mich., is spending a week here with his mother, Mrs. Mary Primm.

ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL HOMECOMING DANCE TO BE OCTOBER 11

Plans were announced yesterday for the annual high school Homecoming Dance, which will be held Friday, October 11. It will take place in the David Prince gymnasium starting at nine o'clock. The homecoming football game with Winchester will be held that afternoon and it is hoped that the students will be able to celebrate a victory.

This year, instead of student committees being in charge of the arrangements for the affair, the faculty took it upon themselves to give the dance. Miss Louise Sheppard is at the head of the faculty committee and A. Lee Freeman is in charge of engaging the orchestra, which, as yet, has not been announced.

The homecoming dance is one of the most popular of the school events and is the first big dance of the year.

FIRE DAMAGES FARM DWELLING

James Powell Residence Catches Fire In Greene County; News Notes

Carrollton, Ill., Oct. 3.—The Carrollton fire department was called about 7:00 p. m. Wednesday to the farm home of James Powell, about 7½ miles west of this city. On arriving at the place they found two rooms of the frame dwelling in flames. Neighbors had removed all of the furniture from the other rooms, but all the furniture that was in the dining room was completely destroyed. The interior of three rooms was gutted with a loss estimated at $250.00 by Fire Chief Charlie Macfarlane.

As none of the Powell family was at home all day, the origin of the fire is unknown. The fire was under control in a half hour after the department arrived. This is the second mysterious fire in the immediate neighborhood in less than a year. Several months ago the home of the E. B. Goodnight family, directly across the road, was completely destroyed together with the hen houses and sheds, while the family were away from home. In this fire the Goodnight family lost everything they had except the clothes they were wearing.

At the district missionary meeting of Alton Presbytery, held at Carlinville Tuesday, Mrs. L. D. Stone of this city was elected presiding officer for the coming year. Mrs. Stone's husband, Rev. L. D. Stone, was elected moderator of Alton Presbytery.

News Notes.

James McPherson of White Hall was a business visitor here Tuesday and Wednesday.

B. W. Eldred, Dennis Vaughn, Lee Macfarlane and Elon Eldred motored to Fairmount, Collinsville and Monk's Mound Wednesday. On the return they visited friends in Alton.

P. J. Vaughn returned Sunday from New York City, where he attended the Louis-Baer bout.

Mayor W. Price Lindsey, who has been in Chicago with City Attorney Clement L. Smith, on matters concerning a PWA grant for a natural gas plant, returned here Monday. It was given out last week that this project together with similar projects for White Hall and Roodhouse had been allowed by the federal board, but it now appears that the grant for some reason is to be held up by the Chicago office.

Miss Wilma Day Bowie of the secretary of state office in Springfield spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowie.

William Woolford of Detroit, Mich., is spending a week here with his mother, Mrs. Mary Primm.

ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL HOMECOMING DANCE TO BE OCTOBER 11

Plans were announced yesterday for the annual high school Homecoming Dance, which will be held Friday, October 11. It will take place in the David Prince gymnasium starting at nine o'clock. The homecoming football game with Winchester will be held that afternoon and it is hoped that the students will be able to celebrate a victory.

This year, instead of student committees being in charge of the arrangements for the affair, the faculty took it upon themselves to give the dance. Miss Louise Sheppard is at the head of the faculty committee and A. Lee Freeman is in charge of engaging the orchestra, which, as yet, has not been announced.

The homecoming dance is one of the most popular of the school events and is the first big dance of the year.

Baptist Church of City Unites With Springfield Group

Delegates Attend Association at Auburn; Invited Here for 1936 Session

The First Baptist church of this city was admitted Wednesday into the Springfield Baptist association during its annual session at Auburn. Four representatives of the Jacksonville church, Rev. F. D. Stone, E. C. Rutherford, Miss Elizabeth Long, and Mrs. Walter Bates, attended th association during the afternoon meeting.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Stone, presented a letter of transfer from the Morgan-Scott Baptist association, which was granted Tuesday during the meeting of that body at Waverly. The Springfield association voted to accept the local church on motion of Rev. A. P. White, pastor of Elliott Avenue Baptist church, Springfield. The association Moderator, Rev. J. H. Hansen, pastor of East Park church, Decatur, presided.

Rev. Mr. Stone extended an invitation to the Springfield association to meet with the Jacksonville church in 1936. The invitation was received with applause, and there was every indication that it would be accepted by the association today when it voted on the place of the next meeting. It was the first invitation presented at the meeting.

With the admission of the Jacksonville church, the Springfield association has a membership of 37 churches, scattered thru several counties of central Illinois. At the session Wednesday 27 churches were represented and turned in annual reports. Rev. E. C. Anderson, First Baptist church, Stonington, is secretary of the association.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

Membership Month Is Being Observed By P.T.A. Congress

Clubs Throughout State Have Made Renewed Effort to Enroll Members

October has been designated membership month by the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and local associations throughout the state are concentrating their efforts toward enrolling members for the worthwhile objective—Child Welfare.

Mrs. Edward Jackson, 219 N. Waller Avenue, Chicago, state chairman of membership, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, has adopted the slogan "Every Home a Parent Teacher Home", and points out the many undertakings of the local, state and national groups. Each parent-teacher member, through his or her annual dues and active participation helps to support the following:

The community in the guidance, care and protection of its children and youth; programs and activities necessary for the well-being of all children in the community; local, council, district, state and national meetings providing opportunities for conferences and personal contacts with other groups doing similar work; publications to help carry on the work; local, state and national offices for information, material and essential services; legislation for child welfare on a local, state, and national basis; nationwide projects, such as, parent education, summer round-up of the children and support of the schools; state and national correspondence courses to develop leadership and promote understanding of Parent-Teacher Association purposes and plans, and state and national field service to help interpret and carry on Parent-Teacher Association organization work.

In thirty-eight years the National Parent-Teacher membership has grown to 1,727,703 members and of this membership Illinois with 111,631 ranks third. Last year Illinois membership increase of over twenty-five percent was the largest. Mrs. Jackson's aim for this year is 120,000 members.

She points out that this is a cooperative organization where no officer receives compensation and all members have voice. Anyone interested in Child Welfare may become a member but parents of pre-school and school children, including high school, are especially solicited to participate in this movement for betterment of conditions affecting those near and dear to them.

At a recent meeting of the board of managers, held September 27, the Stephens Hotel, Chicago, was selected as the convention headquarters of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Chas. Winterbottom Expires in Denver

Former Jacksonville Man Passes Away Sept. 29; Burial Thursday

Word has just been received here telling of the death Sunday evening, September 29, of Jesse Charles Winterbottom, familiarly known to many of his friends as "Buzz," in Denver, Colo., to which city he removed in 1925. Mr. Winterbottom was a native of Jacksonville, having been born here October 5, 1887, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Winterbottom and a nephew of Rev. Baptist Church of City Unites With Springfield Group

Delegates Attend Association at Auburn; Invited Here for 1936 Session

The First Baptist church of this city was admitted Wednesday into the Springfield Baptist association during its annual session at Auburn. Four representatives of the Jacksonville church, Rev. F. D. Stone, E. C. Rutherford, Miss Elizabeth Long, and Mrs. Walter Bates, attended th association during the afternoon meeting.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Stone, presented a letter of transfer from the Morgan-Scott Baptist association, which was granted Tuesday during the meeting of that body at Waverly. The Springfield association voted to accept the local church on motion of Rev. A. P. White, pastor of Elliott Avenue Baptist church, Springfield. The association Moderator, Rev. J. H. Hansen, paster of East Park church, Decatur, presided.

Rev. Mr. Stone extended an invitation to the Springfield association to meet with the Jacksonville church in 1936. The invitation was received with applause, and there was every indication that it would be accepted by the association today when it voted on the place of the next meeting. It was the first invitation presented at the meeting.

With the admission of the Jacksonville church, the Springfield association has a membership of 37 churches scattered thru several counties of central Illinois. At the session Wednesday 27 churches were represented and turned in annual reports. Rev. E. C. Anderson, First Baptist church, Stonington, is secretary of the association.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

Membership Month Is Being Observed By P.T.A. Congress

Clubs Throughout State Have Made Renewed Effort to Enroll Members

October has been designated membership month by the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and local associations throughout the state are concentrating their efforts toward enrolling members for the worthwhile objective—Child Welfare.

Mrs. Edward Jackson, 219 N. Waller Avenue, Chicago, state chairman of membership, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, has adopted the slogan "Every Home a Parent Teacher Home", and points out the many undertakings of the local, state and national groups. Each parent-teacher member, through his or her annual dues and active participation helps to support the following:

The community in the guidance, care and protection of its children and youth; programs and activities necessary for the well-being of all children in the community; local, council, district, state and national meetings providing opportunities for conferences and personal contacts with other groups doing similar work; publications to help carry on the work; local, state and national offices for information, material and essential services; legislation for child welfare on a local, state and national basis; nationwide projects, such as parent education, summer round-up of the children and support of the schools; state and national correspondence courses to develop leadership and promote understanding of Parent-Teacher Association purposes and plans, and state and national field service to help interpret and carry on Parent-Teacher Association organization work.

In thirty-eight years the National Parent-Teacher membership has grown to 1,727,703 members and of this membership Illinois with 111,631 ranks third. Last year Illinois membership increase of over twenty-five percent was the largest. Mrs. Jackson's aim for this year is 120,000 members.

She points out that this is a co-operative organization where no officer receives compensation and all members have voice. Anyone interested in Child Welfare may become a member but parents of pre-school and school children, including high school, are especially solicited to participate in this movement for betterment of conditions affecting those near and dear to them.

At a recent meeting of the board of managers, held September 27, the Stephens Hotel, Chicago, was selected as the convention headquarters of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Convict Publisher Of Libel Charges

Panama Canal Zone Editor Found Guilty by Court

Panama City.—(AP)—Nelson Rounsevell, publisher of the Panama American, convicted of a libel charge arising from criticism of conditions at Fort Clayton, will be sentenced tomorrow in the Canal Zone district court.

His attorney, Louis Waldman of New York, announced that he would appeal the verdict, returned last night by a federal jury.

The charges were brought by Major General Harold B. Fiske, commanding the Panama Canal department, and Colonel James V. Heidt, commander of Fort Clayton.

Rounsevell was acquitted of another charge by a directed verdict Sept. 18, and District Attorney James J. McGuigan indicated three remaining libel charges would not be pressed.

Mrs. Hoover Elected Chief of Girl Scouts

San Francisco—(AP)—What with everybody voting the same way long after the results were announced, the election of a national president of the Girl Scout council here today was unique, to say the least.

When Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former president, said yesterday she would accept the post, all other potential candidates withdrew.

It was necessary to have the election, though, for the record.

Mrs. Hoover, who served as president from 1921 to 1924, will take office tomorrow.

Miss Georgia Leake And N. Davidsmeyer United in Marriage

Jacksonville Girl Becomes Bride in Ceremony at Beardstown Church

Miss Georgia Leake of this city became the bride of Norman Davidsmeyer of Cass county, and Miss Berdella Davidsmeyer wed Russell Kiser, in a double ceremony Tuesday evening in Beardstown. The vows of the couples were said at St. John's Lutheran church parsonage, Rev. Edwin Sommer officiating.

Mrs. Davidsmeyer was attired in a navy blue sheer and white satin suit, with blue accessories to match. Mrs. Kiser wore a navy blue suit with blue accessories.

At the conclusion of the double ceremony the young couples came to Jacksonville, where a wedding dinner was served in the home of Mrs. Davidsmeyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Leake, on Routt street.

Mrs. Davidsmeyer is a well known local young woman, having graduated from Jacksonville High school last spring. The groom is employed here and they will make their home in Jacksonville.

Mr. Davidsmeyer and Mrs. Kiser are the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Davidsmeyer of Bluff Springs. Mr. Kiser is a son of Arthur Kiser of Beardstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidsmeyer will leave Friday for a trip to New Mexico, and after October 20 will be at home at 985 Routt street.

Coal Miners to Get Federal Relief Fund

U.S. Head Says Discrimination Will Not Be Allowed

Washington—(AP)—The door was open today for striking coal miners in four states to receive federal relief "on the basis of need."

Aubrey Williams, acting relief administrator, told a group of union officials discrimination against coal miners seeking relief would not be tolerated. He said relief administration was not interested in the merits of the dispute between operators and miners in Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri, but would grant relief where relief was needed.

A. D. Lewis, international representative of the United Mines Workers, dispatched to union presidents in the strike areas a report on what Williams had said. He said his report would be used as a basis for relief applications from individual miners.

The miners are on strike because they have failed to reach a new wage agreement with the operators. The general strike of coal miners was settled last week when the Appalachian wage agreement was reached and accepted by the majority of miners and operators.

Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Webster of Winchester were among the Thursday visitors in the city.

Mrs. Nottingham Presses Her Case for Balm

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, formerly prominent in Illinois politics, surrendered today to go to jail again as the prisoner of Mrs. Norman Nottingham.

Mrs. Nottingham holds a judgment for $7,500 in "heart balm," awarded when she charged Mrs. Blacklidge with alienating the affections of Norman Nottingham, patrol wagon driver. Under Illinois law she can imprison Mrs. Blacklidge for as much as six months.

At liberty on bond while fighting the case in state and federal courts, Mrs. Blacklidge surrendered to Federal Judge William Holly today in cheerful spirits. Deputy Sheriff Mary Deverman—"My old pal," said Myrtle—took her into custody.

Panama City,—(AP)—Nelson Rounsevell, publisher of the Panama American, convicted of a libel charge arising from criticism of conditions at Fort Clayton, will be sentenced tomorrow in the Canal Zone district court.

His attorney, Louis Waldman of New York, announced that he would appeal the verdict, returned last night by a federal jury.

The charges were brought by Major General Harold B. Fiske, commanding the Panama Canal department, and Colonel James V. Heidt, commander of Fort Clayton.

Rounsevell was acquitted of another charge by a directed verdict Sept. 18, and District Attorney James J. McGuigan indicated three remaining libel charges would not be pressed.

Mrs. Hoover Elected Chief of Girl Scouts

San Francisco—(AP)—What with everybody voting the same way long after the results were announced, the election of a national president of the Girl Scout council here today was unique, to say the least.

When Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former president, said yesterday she would accept the post, all other potential candidates withdrew.

It was necessary to have the election, though, for the record.

Mrs. Hoover, who served as president from 1921 to 1924, will take office tomorrow.

Miss Georgia Leake And N. Davidsmeyer United in Marriage

Jacksonville Girl Becomes Bride in Ceremony at Beardstown Church

Miss Georgia Leake of this city became the bride of Norman Davidsmeyer of Cass county, and Miss Berdella Davidsmeyer wed Russell Kiser, in a double ceremony Tuesday evening in Beardstown. The vows of the couples were said at St. John's Lutheran church parsonage, Rev. Edwin Sommer officiating.

Mrs. Davidsmeyer was attired in a navy blue sheer and white satin suit with blue accessories to match. Mrs. Kiser wore a navy blue suit with blue accessories.

At the conclusion of the double ceremony the young couples came to Jacksonville, where a wedding dinner was served in the home of Mrs. Davidsmeyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Leake, on Routt street.

Mrs. Davidsmeyer is a well known local young woman, having graduated from Jacksonville High school last spring. The groom is employed here and they will make their home in Jacksonville.

Mr. Davidsmeyer and Mrs. Kiser are the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Davidsmeyer of Bluff Springs. Mr. Kiser is a son of Arthur Kiser of Beardstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidsmeyer will leave Friday for a trip to New Mexico, and after October 20 will be at home at 985 Routt street.

Coal Miners to Get Federal Relief Fund

U.S. Head Says Discrimination Will Not Be Allowed

Washington—(AP)—The door was open today for striking coal miners in four states to receive federal relief "on the basis of need."

Aubrey Williams, acting relief administrator, told a group of union officials discrimination against coal miners seeking relief would not be tolerated. He said relief administration was not interested in the merits of the dispute between operators and miners in Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri, but would grant relief where relief was needed.

A. D. Lewis, international representative of the United Mines Workers, dispatched to union presidents in the strike areas a report on what Williams had said. He said his report would be used as a basis for relief applications from individual miners.

The miners are on strike because they have failed to reach a new wage agreement with the operators. The general strike of coal miners was settled last week when the Appalachian wage agreement was reached and accepted by the majority of miners and operators.

Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Webster of Winchester were among the Thursday visitors in the city.

Mrs. Blacklidge to Go Back to Prison

Mrs. Nottingham Presses Her Case for Balm

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, formerly prominent in Illinois politics, surrendered today to go to jail again as the prisoner of Mrs. Norman Nottingham.

Mrs. Nottingham holds a judgment for $7,500 in "heart balm," awarded when she charged Mrs. Blacklidge with alienating the affections of Norman Nottingham, patrol wagon driver. Under Illinois law she can imprison Mrs. Blacklidge for as much as six months.

At liberty on bond while fighting the case in state and federal courts, Mrs. Blacklidge surrendered to Federal Judge William Holly today in cheerful spirits. Deputy Sheriff Mary Deverman—"My old pal," said Myrtle—took her into custody.

Plans For Projects Here Progress City Council Is Informed

Chief of Police Kilioran was given the power to determine whether traffic policemen are needed on busy nights at the North and South Main entrances to the public square, after Alderman Brown protested that the lives of pedestrians were being unnecessarily endanged at these crossings. Alderman Brown also stirred up a lively argument with the water superintendent over the present condition of the water main valves, asking what had been done to get the valves in shape. Brown declared the valves were in such state of repair that it was impossible to shut off service in any section of the city without shutting it off over a large section. He was informed that nothing had been done to remedy the situation.

The council approved a motion by Alderman W. H. Cocking in which the city clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for electrically controlled doors for the fire station. The present doors, Alderman Cocking told the council, are worn out, and in a sad state of repair. It was estimated that the doors would cost about $300 each, and that the station would require three doors.

Sewer Gas Complaints.

Alderman Ralph Green reported that several complaints about sewer gas had been received, and it was suggested that complainants be advised to pour a couple buckets of water into the sewers to prevent the gas from escaping. Water usually in the sewers has evaporated during the dry spell, it was pointed out, allowing the gas to come through the mains. Residents along Howe street are requesting that their sewer be lowered in order to provide drainage facilities for their basements, Alderman Brown reported.

Alderman Cocking stated that two of the city trucks, one from the light department and the other from the water department, were wearing out rapidly. He also said that the six-year-old city tractor was operating at a cost far above that of a road district tractor recently hired by the city for the purpose of grading streets.

Alderman Brown attempted another assault on the city's method of paying bills, particularly to the practice of paying salaries out of the contingent fund, but when informed that although it was somewhat irregular there was nothing criminal in the action, voted with the remainder of the aldermen to pay the month's accumulation of debts.

A cloud that has remained on certain property for 39 years, because of a judgment entered by the city on the property for $50 in 1894, was wiped away when the council authorized the mayor and city clerk to instruct the city treasurer to drop the judgment. The judgment, according to a resolution presented by W. T. Wilson, attorney, stated that the judgment had been paid, but that for some unknown reason, had never been taken off the records at the county court house.

The council was notified that the hearing of telephone companies on the proposition of raising their rates high enough to pass on to the users the three per cent state sales tax had been postponed, and re-set for hearing Oct. 22, at 9:30 a. m. The council expressed a desire to be represented by the city attorney at the hearing, and also for the city attorney to represent the city at similar hearings on efforts of utility companies to raise their rates to include the sales tax.

The council took no action on the report of the Illinois Municipal league that individual members of the league were sponsoring a law suit to inquire into the validity of the three per cent sales tax as it applies to municipally owned and operated public services. It was estimated that it would cost the city about $2,000 to engage in the suit, which asks an injunction from collection of the tax, until a test case can be decided by the state supreme court.

The council also voted to adopt a resolution giving the city permission to tear up North Main street for the purpose of repairing the water mains. The repairs already have been made and the street repaired, but the section is part of the formalities upon which the council must act because the street is part of the Illinois Hard road system.

REHABILITATION OF LIBERTY CEMETERY DISCUSSED AT MEET

More than fifty members of the West Liberty Cemetery association met at the West Liberty church on Thursday afternoon to discuss the rehabilitation of the cemetery.

Much interest was shown by those present and plans were made for several greatly needed improvements on the property. It is planned to level off lots, repair monuments, replace the front fence and several other improvements that will work for the betterment of the cemetery.

It is also planned to interest many friends of the cemetery in the movement.

Many of those present at the meeting yesterday volunteered to donate several days work to the cause. It is the plan of those in charge of the work to start operations on Tuesday, October 15. Anyone wishing to assist in the work is asked to come to the cemetery on October 15, or any day following, as it will require several days to complete the work.

Thursday night marked a high point in the membership drive, sponsored by the Jacksonville Cooperative Concert association. Announcement was made by Miss Fitch that through the courtesy of the Springfield association, reciprocity during the series of concerts will be offered to the Jacksonville association. There will be four artists concerts in the Springfield series.

Mrs. A. R. Gregory met with the captains and the worker on teams Thursday afternoon at headquarters, in the New Dunlap hotel. The meeting was enthusiastic, with reports of a large membership. CHICAGO AREA IS FACED WITH MILK 'FAMINE'

Dealers Resorting To Rationing As Strike Spreads

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Milk dealers of the Chicago area resorted to rationing their supply tonight to save the city from a milk "famine" due to the spreading farmers' "strike."

Dealers who had no milk at all or only part of their normal supply were ready to fill their minimum needs with the aid of more fortunate firms, Paul Trotter, secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., announced.

Even under that system, however, he declared, the dealers could not guarantee a full supply after tomorrow.

While Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, publicly offered his office as a meeting place for dealers and strikers in hope of reaching a settlement, the dealers gained the help of police and deputy sheriffs from two states in running picket blockades.

In sympathy with the strikers' demands for a price increase from $1.75 to $2.50 a hundredweight, Arthur Hartman, of Hampshire, Kane county, resigned as a director of the Pure Milk Association, producers' group that opposed the strike.

Violence flared closest to Chicago early today, when pickets stopped a truck loaded with bottled milk on its way to suburban Berwyn and Cicero. In Lake street, near York road, 1,440 bottles were smashed.

A Chicago motorist, S. E. Bates, mistook pickets for bandits near Elgin, sped past them, and got some bricks through the windshields and windows of his car.

One milk truck driver was hit in the face with a wrench during an argument with strikers in McHenry county. Another had his jaw broken by a stake swung by a picket at Capron, Boone county.

Main hope of ending the strike remained with the conference proposed by Doctor Bundesen.

Miss Ella Rowland of Murrayville was shopping here yesterday afternoon.

Addis Ababa the number of fatalities was not known.

Swift action by the League and big powers appeared in prospect. Great Britain and France agreed at a Paris conference, French officials said, to place a program before the League of Nations calling for immediate severance by members of financial and economic relations with Italy. Financial aid may be proffered Ethiopia.

The League council was summoned into urgent session at Geneva Saturday.

The Italian public received news of the advance calmly. In a note to the League of Nations, Italy claimed its action was purely of a defensive nature in view of increasing Ethiopian hostility.

Great Britain, London dispatches said, is prepared to go the limit under the League covenant to restrain Italy.

The state department in Washington cautiously awaited official reports before commenting. Observers pointed to President Roosevelt's declaration for peace Wednesday.

The German government adopted President Roosevelt's attitude, an informed source stating it "agrees with the viewpoint which has been the Cardinal principle of the German foreign policy."

Financial markets of the world were nervous. But in New York the stock market rallied after an initial dip. Wheat prices fluctuated in Chicago, but in only a few grain markets were gains registered. In London the liquidation of securities and purchase of dollars and commodities was a feature.

POLYMERIZATION

A Supreme Achievement in Gasoline Chemistry

An Amazing Stride Forward in Gasoline Quality

THIS is the story of a new . . . decidedly different . . . decisively superior gasoline.

A gasoline made by a process utterly novel in the petroleum industry.

A process developed, proved, and perfected in the Phillips laboratories and refineries. A process which not only gives you a vastly improved motor fuel, but also plays an important part in conserving our country's valuable petroleum reserves.

Pioneered by Phillips, this miracle of modern chemistry rearranges the atoms of high-explosive vapors and transforms them into stable, high-octane, outstandingly active gasoline.

This is the superlative product which will now enrich and fortify every gallon of Phillips 66.

The result is a gasoline more obedient to your wishes than ever before . . . a gasoline which actually steps up pick-up and peps up power still further . . . a gasoline which yields more mileage because it gives up more of its energy to each piston stroke . . . a gasoline so lively that it sets new records for fast starting.

Note well the name of the process: Polymerization—or POLY, for short. Mark the word well in your memory, because it is acclaimed as today's greatest advance in gasoline manufacture. Never before in the history of refining has any invention excited so much attention and interest. Again, Phillips has blazed a new trail! Again, Phillips leads in lifting the quality of motor fuel to higher levels of performance and value!

Remember, Phillips 66 is everything it has always been, PLUS! That "plus" is POLY. Hence, when you Phill-up with Phillips 66 POLYmerized, at no increase in cost, you can confidently expect that this greater gasoline will set new standards of service and value for your money.

Inevitably, this sensational gasoline will be the talk of motordom. It is now obtainable at all Phillips 66 Stations. Why not be among the first to try a tankful, and benefit from its unrivaled excellence and economy?

AN INVITATION FROM THE PRESIDENT

Polymerization is a scientific revolution in the making of gasoline. This newly invented process produces premium quality motor fuel, not by physical separation of the crude petroleum as heretofore, but by chemical reconstruction of the lighter gases.

Based on my 31 years' experience in the oil business, I can assure you that Phillips Gasoline plus POLYmerization is the finest motor fuel that can be produced by the most modern refinery methods.

I invite you to try a tankful of this unprecedented gasoline. After you do so, I will be glad to have you write me any comments you care to make.

Today's Biggest Value in Premium Gasoline

AN INVITATION FROM THE PRESIDENT

Polymerization is a scientific revolution in the making of gasoline. This newly invented process produces premium quality motor fuel, not by physical separation of the crude petroleum as heretofore, but by chemical reconstruction of the lighter gases.

Based on my 31 years' experience in the oil business, I can assure you that Phillips Gasoline plus POLYmerization is the finest motor fuel that can be produced by the most modern refinery methods.

I invite you to try a tankful of this unprecedented gasoline. After you do so, I will be glad to have you write me any comments you care to make.

Crimsons Invade Greenfield Tonight Still Seeking Win

Still seeking their first victory of the season, the Jacksonville High School Crimsons tonight will go to Greenfield where they will meet the undefeated team of that city in their third start of the season, hoping that they can break the jinx that the home field has cast over their efforts.

Throughout the week, Coach Frank Walker has been striving to teach the boys how to avoid the bad breaks that have cost them two games thus far, or reduce them to a point where they will not figure as heavily in the scoring. The team will go into action with a somewhat revised line-up in an effort to shake the jinx.

The return of Donald Ranson from the list of injured has heightened the Crimson cause somewhat, but the relapse of a few of the former linemen has offset the gain. Ranson, Leach, Benson and Charles Davis probably will be the starting backfield.

Bradshaw has replaced Darr in one of the tackle jobs, and Winfield Chinowith, who played last year at Greenfield, has clung to his starting position at the other tackle post. Capt. Warren Breeding and Bob Hopper will be the guards, and Hamilton and Frank the ends. Dick Hartman has returned to the center position again.

Only six reserves, Murphy, Greenleaf, Darr, Eyre, Ball and Rimbey, have been selected to make the trip.

Greenfield is using virtually the same team that wound up the season last year. The Greenfield club opened the season with a 6-0 victory over Pleasant Hill, and then defeated Jerseyville 2-0 to take the lead in the Illinois Valley conference. Coach C. F. Hubbell has brought his boys through the first two games in good condition.

S. R. FOSTER, BEARDSTOWN, DIES SUDDENLY

Cass County Insurance Man Found Dead At Home Thursday

Beardstown, Oct. 3.—Samuel Raymond Foster, well known insurance agent of this city, was found dead on the bed of his home, 1105 Monroe street, here this afternoon. A son, Jack, discovered the body of his father at five o'clock, but it is thought he had been dead two hours prior to that time.

Heart trouble is believed to have caused the death, although Mr. Foster had not been in failing health. An inquest will be conducted Friday morning at 11 o'clock here.

Mr. Foster was about 40 years of age. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hazel Foster, and two children, Jack and Jean, at home. Mrs. Foster is the daughter of Mrs. S. N. Blimling of Jacksonville.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Roosevelt Cruises In Pacific After Delivering Speech

Reiterates America Will Remain Unentangled in Ethiopian Conflict

En Route with President Roosevelt on the Pacific—(AP)—President Roosevelt cruised southward off the Pacific Coast of Mexico today after a review of the United States fleet and a sharp notice to the world of America's determination to remain "unentangled and free."

The president boarded the navy cruiser Houston late yesterday at San Diego, and from it watched the naval demonstration, which ended at sunset. It was one of the most complete tactical exercises of the fleet.

Off the Coronados Islands, just over the boundary from the United States and still in sight of the lights of San Diego, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander of the fleet, departed to return to his flagship.

Then the Houston turned southward, escorted by the cruiser Portland.

Returning to Washington after his transcontinental tour, Mr. Roosevelt was looking forward to engaging in his favorite sport while cruising toward the Panama Canal.

Yesterday's demonstration of naval power, the most spectacular ever witnessed by a chief executive of the nation, followed Mr. Roosevelt's speech in which he declared:

"We not only earnestly desire peace but we are moved by a stern determination to avoid those perils that will endanger our peace with the world."

Italians, Negroes Start Battle In Harlem, Brooklyn

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Fighting which threatened to attain riot proportions, broke out in Harlem and Brooklyn late today between Negroes and Italian sympathizers at odds over the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

So tense was the situation, that hard-pressed police officials went into conference at headquarters late in the day with the outcome pointing to establishment of heavy police reserves in each precinct of the mixed neighborhoods.

The most serious trouble threatened in Brooklyn late in the day when several hundred white and negro youths swarmed from a junior high school at Saratoga avenue and Dean street to "settle" the Italian-Ethiopian feud with knives, clubs and fists.

Gang fighting among the pupils soon resulted in the gathering of a crowd of nearly 1,000, evenly divided in sympathies. School authorities put in a call for police.

Six radio cars, the emergency police squad, a corps of detectives and Deputy Chief Inspector Edward A. Bracken, in command of Brooklyn police, answered the call. The crowd was dispersed, but a guard was posted to watch for further trouble in the neighborhood, populated about equally between Negroes and Italians.

FINGERPRINTING DISCUSSED AT ABC MEETING THURSDAY

Urging the use of finger prints as a means of personal identification, Sergeant George Vasconcellos of the Jacksonville police department last night told the members of the American Business clubs at their meeting that finger-printing is thousands of years old, and that it has been used for centuries as a means of signing contracts.

President Philip Bradish of the club appointed a committee with Maynard Weber as chairman to obtain more details of the fifth district convention to be held in Springfield at the St. Nicholas hotel Oct. 18-19, and to appoint an official delegate. President Bradish also introduced the speaker.

Pointing out that fingerprinting has been used for many years as a means of criminal detection, Sgt. Vasconcellos told the members of the club how the science of finger-printing has developed during the recent years. He explained the classification of finger prints, and exhibited a camera used in taking pictures of finger prints, and the machine upon which finger prints are registered.

Chinese used the print of the left hand thumt as a signature on contracts for merchandise as long ago as four thousand years, he said in relating the history. Until 1905 it was a custom in China to brand criminals for ready identification, but branding has been dropped in all civilized nations at present.

Mrs. Clarence McCaleb of Bluffs was calling on friends in the city Thursday afternoon.

Two Undefeated Teams To Open Three Game Illinois Valley Card

Games Friday.

Carrollton and Winchester, two undefeated teams in the Illinois Valley conference, will open a three game card this afternoon on the Winchester field, when the two teams battle it out for part of the leadership in the conference. Greenfield, with two conference scalps, is playing Jacksonville high this week, a non-conference school.

Carrollton, defending the Valley championship this year, has two victories to its credit, a 13 to 7 victory over Girard at the start of the season and a 13 to 0 victory over Pittsfield registered last week. Winchester has started like a red-hot team, holding the veteran Virginia team to a scoreless tie in the first game of the season, and then ringing up a two touchdown margin over White Hall in its first conference start.

The Hawks got away to a slow start this year, but are coming along rapidly. Winchester has discovered a wide open attack, and uses it effectively in order to get the most good out of its somewhat lighter team. Dangerous all the time, an opposing defense must be continually on the alert.

Roodhouse, after losing a 6-0 decision to Quincy in its opener, and then turning back Feltshans of Springfield 20 to 13, will open its conference campaign at Pleasant Hill Saturday. Pleasant Hill has lost two tussles, both by 6-0 scores, to Greenfield and Louisiana, Mo. The Louisiana team invades Pittsfield tonight and the Indians see a chance to get a little ahead in their percentage for the year. Pittsfield defeated Jacksonville 6-0 and then lost to Carrollton.

White Hall, downed by Beardstown and Winchester, but looking better every day, is looking ahead to its Saturday conference scrap with Jerseyville with anticipation. They see in the game a chance to break into the winning column but expect a tough battle, in view of Jerseyville's unexpected set-back at the hands of Greenfield 2-0 last week. Jerseyville dropped the first game of its season, 13-0, to Wood River.

Kiwanians Listen To Baseball Game

Hold Weekly Luncheon But Keep Tab on Score of World's Series

The Kiwanis club at its Thursday meeting listened to the broadcast of the World Series baseball game at Detroit. Just prior to the radio broadcast announcement was made by John W. Larson, lieutenant-governor of this Kiwanis division that Griggsville will observe charter night October 17.

President Chalmers Gillon named an On to Griggsville committee which included Max Tschauder, Fred Hopper, Claude Jewsbury and Lohman Wagner, with the expectation that a large number of local Kiwanians will attend the meeting.

Miss Dorothea Fitch, representing the New York Concert association, which is sponsoring a series of artists' recitals in Jacksonville, spoke briefly telling of the plan for the programs.

VOLLEY BALL SEASON EXPECTED TO BEGIN EARLIER THIS YEAR

With the coming of cool weather, many inquiries have been made of Y. M.C.A. Secretary A. D. Hermann, regarding the time when volley ball leagues will again be organized.

During the past years this activity has usually started after Thanksgiving, formal leagues beginning about the first of January. Mr. Hermann stated, however, that if there is sufficient interest, this activity will begin earlier this season. It is expected that games will be played in the school gymnasiums as in the past.

Any groups that are interested in organizing teams are being encouraged by Y.M.C.A. Secretary Hermann to get together and notify him. It is probable that preliminary schedules of games will be arranged to start within a few weeks.

What Happened in Clubhouses After The Second Game

By Charles Dunkley
Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—"We've started hitting—now watch us go."

It was Mickey Cochrane, smiling for the first time in two days, speaking. The Tiger manager, a broad grin on his face, sat in the wire cage which serves as his office in the clubhouse today and was glad to meet everybody. It was a different Mickey Cochrane than the individual who led his defeated Tigers off the field yesterday. He was cheered and confident that his players would triumph over the Cubs in the third game of the series in Chicago tomorrow.

"I'll start Auker against them," Cochrane said, "and he ought to beat 'em. Bridges pitched a swell ball game today. He had plenty of stuff and good control and never was in danger. I was glad to see those base hits in the first inning. It's about time we started getting 'em. Isn't it?"

Big Hank Greenberg, Tiger first baseman, injured his left wrist sliding into home plate while attempting to score in the seventh inning and was immediately rushed downtown for x-ray examination. Dr. William E. Keane, Tiger physician, said the tendons on the back of the wrist had been hurt, but he was not worried over the injury, expressing the opinion Greenberg would be ready to play tomorrow.

Greenberg was relieved. He had complained that his wrist was numb when he came off the playing field, but after the examination said he'd be ready for action tomorrow.

There was no pop-eyed celebration in the Tiger dressing room as there was in the Cub clubhouse yesterday. The Tigers took their victory as something they expected and had coming to them. Little Tommy Bridges, who held the Cubs to six hits, naturally quiet and bashful, took his victory modestly.

"I'm glad I won," he said. "I felt confident I would when I started."

The Cubs, with Manager Charlie Grimm leading them, trooped into their clubhouse with the same old fighting spirit and not at all downhearted. Once inside the door, Grimm let out a blood-curdling yell and said:

"Thats the way to get beat. Get the hell kicked out of you and have it over with.

"Tough luck Charlie," he yelled to the veteran Charlie Root, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning.

"You guys loked better losing than those guys did winning." Grimm yelled to his players. "You're still big gentlemuns. I didn't want to send Larry French into relieve Root after the Tigers scored four runs in the first because I might save him for a tougher spot or even use him as a starting pitcher before the series is over. We're just as happy over here as they are over there."

Grimm praised the pitching performance of Bridges, whose curves, speed and change of pace fooled the Cubs completely.

"Bridges looked swell in there," Grimm said.

"He had a lot of stuff on the ball and took good care of us."

Uniforms were strewn all over the place as the players shed them and rushed to the showers. They were hurrying to catch their train which left for Chicago at 5 p. m. Grimm warned his men to get a good night's rest in Chicago instead of making the trip in sleepers.

Stanley Hack, Cub third baseman, probably expressed the sentiment of all his teammates when he blurted out: "we're not downhearted. It's all even now and we'll lick 'em tomorrow."

Grimm plans to start Big Bill Lee, right hander and leading National League pitcher this year, against the Tigers tomorrow. Lee won 20 games this year, losing only six.

Illini Badly Hurt By Grid's Three I's

Les Lindberg Lost for Time; Chicago Loses Promising Backfield Man

Chicago — (AP) — Hardly recovered from the sting of last week's surprise defeat by Ohio University, Illinois was having trouble today with the three evil "I's" of football—injuries, illness and ineligibility.

On top of the loss of Les Lindberg, their most capable all around back who was hurt in the Ohio University 6 to 0 reverse, the Illini had to limp through practice for the Washington University game Saturday minus five other members of the first squad.

Iowa, Chicago, Northwestern and Minnesota also had similar troubles in lesser numbers. Iowa's Bob Lannon and Gordon Matson, regular ends, and Harry Kelley, a big guard, may be out of Saturday's tussle with South Dakota because of injuries.

Chicago yesterday lost Ralph Belfanz, a good reserve back, by ineligibility, and Northwestern may have to battle Purdue in Saturday's Big Ten opener without tackle Sam Papich and Babe Bender, regular end. Minnesota's regular guards, Vernon Oech and Charles Wilkinson, were out of practice with injuries.

Purdue drilled to perfect timing of its offensive yesterday while Northwestern divided its session between defensive measures and a polishing up of new plays.

Michigan spent another workout on ways and means of stopping Michigan State plays, while Ohio State went through a brisk rehearsal in preparation for Saturday's opening game with Kentucky.

Wisconsin practiced in secret. Iowa brushed up on lateral and forward pass maneuvers, and Minnesota's regulars worked on fundamentals and signals. Bo McMillin drilled Indiana against passes he expects his Alma Mater, Centre College, to toss in the Hoosiers' opening game, while Coach Clark Shaughnessy enlarged the Chicago offense to provide ball carrying help for Jay Berwanger.

Blueboys Dress Up; Look At Foes Plays

Feduris Will Not Be Able To Play This Week; Ease Up Work

Illinois College's Blueboys put on their best bibs and tuckers for yesterday's practice, took a look at Parsons College plays as observed by Coach Raymond Nusspickel at Fairfield, Iowa, last week, and eased up on the hard work as they coast until time for the opening home game of the schedule here this Saturday.

Parsons is going to be plenty tough, Coach Nusspickel told his slightly crippled squad, but they are a non-conference foe, and there isn't going to be any keying done for the game. Take them in stride was the coach's advice.

Abe Feduris, who returned to the campus this week, will not be able to play for the Blueboys this week, and it has not been definitely determined whether he will be able to play with them next week at Millikin. However, the 240 pound co-captain was issued a game uniform and continues to go through the training grind along with the others, although there is a sort of lost look about him.

The left side of the Parsons line is particularly tough, Nusspickel told his squad, as was borne out in the game in which Western Teachers College of Macomb won by a margin of 5 to 3, each side scoring a goal from field and Western scoring a safety for the winning margin.

Parsons has two tough backs in Norvell and Black, the quarter and halfback from the left side of the backfield. L. J. Frank is head coach of the Parsons team, and he is assisted by three men.

Although the local squad is somewhat crippled, the injuries are not serious enough to keep any of the boys out of the line-up. Both Bill Jones and Reynolds, injured Wednesday afternoon, were able to return to the squad yesterday with patches over the breaks in the skin.

There remains some doubt about the starting line-up as yet, with the end position particularly uncertain. Fred Coleman, Hartong, Lorenz and Waller, the latter three freshmen, are all making a scrap for the position with Waller almost certain to get a chance this week.

Winchester Stores Close For Grid Go

Winchester, Oct. 3.—One of the outstanding games of the Illinois Valley Conference will be played at Winchester Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the Wildcats will meet the last year's valley champs. Both teams have showed considerable strength in their previous games. Carrollton having been a little more impressive with their easy win over Pittsfield.

Coach Chapman was far from satisfied with the showing his boys made last week against White Hall. Consequently a great deal of time this week has been spent on fundamentals.

Two of the Wildcat regulars are likely to miss the opening whistle, Ed. McLaughlin, end, has been out all week with a serious infection while Jones at tackle has been laid up with a cold. It is thought that Jones will be able to play at least part of the game.

The business men of Winchester have decided to make the game a Homecoming affair and practically all merchants will close their places of business during the game.

Estelle Gooden Sent To Asylum

Marion, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Estelle Gooden, former Williamson county clerk who is under indictment for an alleged effort to defraud the county by a simulated robbery, was ordered committed to Anna State Hospital for the Insane today.

A federal warrant charging Mrs. Gooden with violation of the narcotic act was served on her recently but she was not arrested because of illness.

Mrs. Gooden's husband, Pat, signed the complaint on which she was committed to the hospital today. Gooden alleged she tried to kill him and his daughter and was supported by testimony of physicians and federal agents who tried to serve the narcotic warrant.

LEAVE HOME

Police were notified yesterday that Evelyn Crawford, 14, and Paul Stanley Sooy, 13, both of Franklin had disappeared from their homes yesterday. They were reported to have been seen in South Jacksonville at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. C. Scott of Franklin spent Thursday afternoon in the city shopping.

Holds Bruins to Six Hits While His Mates Collect 9 Off Root, Henshaw, Kowalik

By Alan Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Thomas David Bridges, the Tennessee thunderbolt with the crackling curve, came to the rescue of the Detroit Tigers today and hurled them right back into the middle of the coldest battle waged for baseball's world championship in ten years.

The six-hit pitching of the slim speed-ball artist, combined with a blast of semi-freezing weather and a first-inning barrage of base-hits, halted the impetuous charge of the Chicago Cubs. The final score was 8 to 3 as the home team's "G-men" opened fire for the first time with their bats and drove the veteran Charley Root to cover with a four-run fusilade climaxed by Hank Greenberg's first homer of the series.

The Tiger triumph squared matters at one game apiece, with the warfare shifting from this frigid battleground to Chicago tomorrow for the next three games. The enthusiasm of the American league champions, along with 46,742 half-frozen cash customers was cut somewhat short by an injury to the slugging Greenberg, who hurt his left wrist sliding into the plate in the seventh inning.

Examination of Greenberg's arm by the Tiger physician, soon after the game, disclosed injured tendons but no serious damage otherwise and it was expected the big first sacker would be in the third game tomorrow, whether he is handicapped or not.

The rival clubs left on special trains, within an hour after the game, in order to get plenty of rest before resuming the series tomorrow on the home grounds of the National league champions at Wrigley Field. The pitching selections for the third game are Elden Auker, submarine-ball right hander of the Tigers, and big Bill Lee, freshman right-hander of the Cubs.

The Cubs, somewhat chastened by their beating today, still ruled slight favorites as they hustled back to their home grounds. They have been unbeatable at home for a month and they are confident of gaining the advantage again with Lee in the box tomorrow and the great Lon Warneke, shutout hero of yesterday's game, slated to come back for the fourth game on Saturday.

The Cubs acted like most of the onlookers felt this afternoon—half frozen. They were helpless for fully two-thirds of the game against the dynamic speed and curves of Bridges. The slim Tennessee sharpshooter held the Chicagoans hitless for three innings, yielded only three well-spaced hits in the first six frames and eased up after his mates piled up an overwhelming margin by battering three Cub hurlers.

The Tigers had a seven-run lead before the Cubs pushed over their first marker, with the aid of two miscues by Greenberg in the fifth. With his chance for a shutout spoiled, Bridges coasted along for the rest of the game and was in difficulty only once, in the seventh, as Billy Herman drove in the last two Cub runs with a looping hit to left.

The Tigers came out of their batting slump with a bombardment that must have echoed all over Detroit, if not the entire country. Before they took the field for the second game, manager Cochrane exhorted them in effect, as follows: "It's too cold for any fancy business today, men, so you might as well step right up and start smacking everything you can get your bats on."

Following instructions to the letter, the Tigers thumped Root for four successive hits and as many runs Jo-Jo White looped a hit to left as a starter. Cochrane lashed a double down the right-field line, scoring White. Charley Gehringer, after being robbed of a home run by the wind that carried his towering drive over the right-field wall in foul territory, smashed a single to center, scoring Mickey. Greenberg took a toehold and battered a homer high into the bleacher crowd back of left field.

The only man "out" at this juncture was Root, a veteran of other and celebrated world series bombardments who saw his hopes of a come-back shattered once more. Root has now started four world series games and failed to finish a single one. He was a victim of the famous ten-run outburst by the Athletics in the fourth game of the 1929 series. He was on the mound in Chicago in 1932 when Babe Ruth—who caught a foul ball in the press box today—called his shot and cracked a home run into the center field bleachers.

Little Roy Henshaw, former University of Chicago boy and a southpaw, halted the Tigers onslaught, pitching hitless ball for three innings before going to pieces in the fourth. With two out in this frame, Henshaw nicked Owen with a curve ball. The Cub pitcher then failed to duck a hard smash from the bat of his pitching rival, Bridges. The ball hit him on the leg, caromed off for a base-hit and seemingly left Henshaw a bit wobbly. He lost control quickly, passing White to fill the bases and turning loose a wild pitch, with Cochrane up, to let Owen across the plate. A pass to Cochrane filled the bases again and Henshaw was knocked out of the box by Gehringer's line single to center, which scored Bridges and White.

Right-handed Fabian Kowalik, formerly of the Buffalo Internationals, stopped the Tigers. He yielded only 3 hits for the rest of the game but his wildness contributed to the last Detroit run. This was tallied in the seventh. Cochrane walked, was forced by Gehringer, who advanced when Greenberg was hit by a pitched ball and raced home on Pete Fox's single to right.

It was at this point that Greenberg figured in the episode that caused his injury. Tearing around the bases, big Hank was planning to halt at third base but when Fox's hit caromed away from the Cub fielders in short right, he was sent on home. The relay to Hartnett and Greenberg's headlong slide reached the plate at about the same time. Hank was blocked off, however, and tagged for the third out.

Gehringer, driving in three runs and scoring two others, was the big gun in the Tiger attack. The powerhouse section of the Detroit batting order, after going hitless the day before, generated the decisive batting energy.

Gabby Hartnett rapped out the first Chicago baseHit in the fourth. Phil Cavarretta tallied the first run, in the fifth, but it was a gift. Greenberg first fumbled Phil's roller, then tossed wildly to Bridges. Hack's infield out advanced Cavarretta who raced home on Bill Jurges' single to right.

Frank Demaree doubled to the screen in the sixth, but the blow came after the Tigers had wiped out Lindstrom and Hartnett on a double play and was wasted. In the seventh, with one out, Jurges walked and Kowalik scratched a single down the third base line. Both advanced on Galan's grounder to Gehringer and both scored on Herman's single.

Bridges was touched by Hack for a single to start the ninth but retired the next three batters rapidly, including Chuck Klein, one-time National league batting champion, pinch-hitting for Kowalik. Klein popped a short fly to Goslin.

Despite brief spells of wildness, Bridges never had anything serious to worry about as the Cubs kept popping up his fast ball or hitting his curves into the ground.

The game was played in the coldest series weather since the 1925 series between Washington and Pittsburgh. It was close to freezing this morning and it was in the forties, with a penetrating wind blowing, throughout the game.

Baseball Returns Attract Big Crowd

Second Game of Series is Big Drawing Card for the Journal and Courier

Another large crowd enjoyed the world series game yesterday as the returns were sent out play by play by the Journal and Courier. The crowd filled the seats and stood about the sidewalk, massing near the broadcasting outfit operated by "Count" Landreth.

As Detroit appeared to have the game won in the first inning, considerable enthusiasm prevailed among the watchers. The four-run lead secured by the Tigers was a startling contrast to the shut-out they experienced Wednesday at the hands of Warneke, the Cub star.

The Journal and Courier will broadcast returns of each world series game, and everybody is cordially invited to hear the play-by-play story of the game and follow the plays on the diamond bulletin board.

Crimsons Invade Greenfield Tonight Still Seeking Win

Still seeking their first victory of the season, the Jacksonville High School Crimsons tonight will go to Greenfield where they will meet the undefeated team of that city in their third start of the season, hoping that they can break the jinx that the home field has cast over their efforts.

Throughout the week, Coach Frank Walker has been striving to teach the boys how to avoid the bad breaks that have cost them two games thus far, or reduce them to a point where they will not figure as heavily in the scoring. The team will go into action with a somewhat revised line-up in an effort to shake the jinx.

The return of Donald Ranson from the list of injured has heightened the Crimson cause somewhat, but the relapse of a few of the former linemen has offset the gain. Ranson, Leach, Benson and Charles Davis probably will be the starting backfield.

Bradshaw has replaced Darr in one of the tackle jobs, and Winfield Chinowith, who played last year at Greenfield, has clung to his starting position at the other tackle post. Capt. Warren Breeding and Bob Hopper will be the guards, and Hamilton and Frank the ends. Dick Hartman has returned to the center position again.

Only six reserves, Murphy, Greenleaf, Darr, Eyre, Ball and Rimbey, have been selected to make the trip.

Greenfield is using virtually the same team that wound up the season last year. The Greenfield club opened the season with a 6-0 victory over Pleasant Hill, and then defeated Jerseyville 2-0 to take the lead in the Illinois Valley conference. Coach C. F. Hubbell has brought his boys through the first two games in good condition.

S. R. FOSTER, BEARDSTOWN, DIES SUDDENLY

Cass County Insurance Man Found Dead At Home Thursday

Beardstown, Oct. 3.—Samuel Raymond Foster, well known insurance agent of this city, was found dead on the bed of his home, 1105 Monroe street, here this afternoon. A son, Jack, discovered the body of his father at five o'clock, but it is thought he had been dead two hours prior to that time.

Heart trouble is believed to have caused the death, although Mr. Foster had not been in failing health. An inquest will be conducted Friday morning at 11 o'clock here.

Mr. Foster was about 40 years of age. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hazel Foster, and two children, Jack and Jean, at home. Mrs. Foster is the daughter of Mrs. S. N. Blimling of Jacksonville.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Roosevelt Cruises In Pacific After Delivering Speech

Reiterates America Will Remain Unentangled in Ethiopian Conflict

En Route with President Roosevelt on the Pacific—(AP)—President Roosevelt cruised southward off the Pacific Coast of Mexico today after a review of the United States fleet and a sharp notice to the world of America's determination to remain "unentangled and free."

The president boarded the navy cruiser Houston late yesterday at San Diego, and from it watched the naval demonstration, which ended at sunset. It was one of the most complete tactical exercises of the fleet.

Off the Coronados Islands, just over the boundary from the United States and still in sight of the lights of San Diego, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander of the fleet, departed to return to his flagship.

Then the Houston turned southward, escorted by the cruiser Portland.

Returning to Washington after his transcontinental tour, Mr. Roosevelt was looking forward to engaging in his favorite sport while cruising toward the Panama Canal.

Yesterday's demonstration of naval power, the most spectacular ever witnessed by a chief executive of the nation, followed Mr. Roosevelt's speech in which he declared:

"We not only earnestly desire peace but we are moved by a stern determination to avoid those perils that will endanger our peace with the world."

Italians, Negroes Start Battle In Harlem, Brooklyn

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Fighting, which threatened to attain riot proportions, broke out in Harlem and Brooklyn late today between Negroes and Italian sympathizers at odds over the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

So tense was the situation, that hard-pressed police officials went into conference at headquarters late in the day with the outcome pointing to establishment of heavy police reserves in each precinct of the mixed neighborhoods.

The most serious trouble threatened in Brooklyn late in the day when several hundred white and negro youths swarmed from a junior high school at Saratoga avenue and Dean street to "settle" the Italian-Ethiopian feud with knives, clubs and fists.

Gang fighting among the pupils soon resulted in the gathering of a crowd of nearly 1,000, evenly divided in sympathies. School authorities put in a call for police.

Six radio cars, the emergency police squad, a corps of detectives and Deputy Chief Inspector Edward A. Bracken, in command of Brooklyn police, answered the call. The crowd was dispersed, but a guard was posted to watch for further trouble in the neighborhood, populated about equally between Negroes and Italians.

FINGERPRINTING DISCUSSED AT ABC MEETING THURSDAY

Urging the use of finger prints as a means of personal identification, Sergeant George Vasconcellos of the Jacksonville police department last night told the members of the American Business clubs at their meeting that finger-printing is thousands of years old, and that it has been used for centuries as a means of signing contracts.

President Philip Bradish of the club appointed a committee with Maynard Weber as chairman to obtain more details of the fifth district convention to be held in Springfield at the St. Nicholas hotel Oct. 18-19, and to appoint an official delegate. President Bradish also introduced the speaker.

Pointing out that fingerprinting has been used for many years as a means of criminal detection, Sgt. Vasconcellos told the members of the club how the science of finger-printing has developed during the recent years. He explained the classification of finger prints, and exhibited a camera used in taking pictures of finger prints, and the machine upon which finger prints are registered.

Chinese used the print of the left hand thumb as a signature on contracts for merchandise as long ago as four thousand years, he said in relating the history. Until 1905 it was a custom in China to brand criminals for ready identification, but branding has been dropped in all civilized nations at present.

Mrs. Clarence McCaleb of Bluffs was calling on friends in the city Thursday afternoon.

Two Undefeated Teams To Open Three Game Illinois Valley Card

Routt at McCooey High (Hannibal.)

Carrollton and Winchester, two undefeated teams in the Illinois Valley conference, will open a three game card this afternoon on the Winchester field, when the two teams battle it out for part of the leadership in the conference. Greenfield, with two conference scalps, is playing Jacksonville high this week, a non-conference school.

Carrollton, defending the Valley championship this year, has two victories to its credit, a 13 to 7 victory over Girard at the start of the season and a 13 to 0 victory over Pittsfield registered last week. Winchester has started like a red-hot team, holding the veteran Virginia team to a scoreless tie in the first game of the season, and then ringing up a two touchdown margin over White Hall in its first conference start.

The Hawks got away to a slow start this year, but are coming along rapidly. Winchester has discovered a wide open attack, and uses it effectively in order to get the most good out of its somewhat lighter team. Dangerous all the time, an opposing defense must be continually on the alert.

Roodhouse, after losing a 6-0 decision to Quincy in its opener, and then turning back Feltshans of Springfield 20 to 13, will open its conference campaign at Pleasant Hill Saturday. Pleasant Hill has lost two tussles, both by 6-0 scores, to Greenfield and Louisiana, Mo. The Louisiana team invades Pittsfield tonight and the Indians see a chance to get a little ahead in their pencentage for the year. Pittsfield defeated Jacksonville 6-0 and then lost to Carrollton.

White Hall, downed by Beardstown and Winchester, but looking better every day, is looking ahead to its Saturday conference scrap with Jerseyville with anticipation. They see in the game a chance to break into the winning column but expect a tough battle, in view of Jerseyville's unexpected set-back at the hands of Greenfield 2-0 last week. Jerseyville dropped the first game of its season, 13-0, to Wood River.

Kiwanians Listen To Baseball Game

Hold Weekly Luncheon But Keep Tab on Score of World's Series

The Kiwanis club at its Thursday meeting listened to the broadcast of the World Series baseball game at Detroit. Just prior to the radio broadcast announcement was made by John W. Larson, lieutenant-governor of this Kiwanis division that Griggsville will observe charter night October 17.

President Chalmers Giffen named an On to Griggsville committee which included Max Tschauder, Fred Hopper, Claude Jewsbury and Lohman Wagner, with the expectation that a large number of local Kiwanians will attend the meeting.

Miss Dorothea Fitch, representing the New York Concert association, which is sponsoring a series of artists' recitals in Jacksonville, spoke briefly telling of the plan for the programs.

VOLLEY BALL SEASON EXPECTED TO BEGIN EARLIER THIS YEAR

With the coming of cool weather, many inquiries have been made of Y. M.C.A. Secretary A. D. Hermann, regarding the time when volley ball leagues will again be organized.

During the past years this activity has usually started after Thanksgiving, formal leagues beginning about the first of January. Mr. Hermann stated, however, that if there is sufficient interest, this activity will begin earlier this season. It is expected that games will be played in the school gymnasiums as in the past.

Any groups that are interested in organizing teams are being encouraged by Y.M.C.A. Secretary Hermann to get together and notify him. It is probable that preliminary schedules of games will be arranged to start within a few weeks.

What Happened in Clubhouses After The Second Game

By Charles Dunkley
Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—"We've started hitting—now watch us go."

It was Mickey Cochrane, smiling for the first time in two days, speaking. The Tiger manager, a broad grin on his face, sat in the wire cage which serves as his office in the clubhouse today and was glad to meet everybody. It was a different Mickey Cochrane than the individual who led his defeated Tigers off the field yesterday. He was cheered and confident that his players would triumph over the Cubs in the third game of the series in Chicago tomorrow.

"I'll start Auker against them," Cochrane said, "and he ought to beat 'em. Bridges pitched a swell ball game today. He had plenty of stuff and good control and never was in danger. I was glad to see those base hits in the first inning. It's about time we started getting 'em. Isn't it?"

Big Hank Greenberg, Tiger first baseman, injured his left wrist sliding into home plate while attempting to score in the seventh inning and was immediately rushed dowtown for x-ray examination. Dr. William E. Keane, Tiger physician, said the tendons on the back of the wrist had been hurt, but he was not worried over the injury, expressing the opinion Greenberg would be ready to play tomorrow.

Greenberg was relieved. He had complained that his wrist was numb when he came off the playing field, but after the examination said he'd be ready for action tomorrow.

There was no pop-eyed celebration in the Tiger dressing room as there was in the Cub clubhouse yesterday. The Tigers took their victory as something they expected and had coming to them. Little Tommy Bridges, who held the Cubs to six hits, naturally quiet and bashful, took his victory modestly.

"I'm glad I won," he said. "I felt confident I would when I started."

The Cubs, with Manager Charlie Grimm leading them, trooped into their clubhouse with the same old fighting spirit and not at all downhearted. Once inside the door, Grimm let out a blood-curdling yell and said:

"Thats the way to get beat. Get the hell kicked out of you and have it over with.

"Tough luck Charlie," he yelled to the veteran Charlie Root, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning.

"You guys loked better losing than those guys did winning," Grimm yelled to his players. "You're still big gentlemuns. I didn't want to send Larry French into relieve Root after the Tigers scored four runs in the first because I might save him for a tougher spot or even use him as a starting pitcher before the series is over. We're just as happy over here as they are over there."

Grimm praised the pitching performance of Bridges, whose curves, speed and change of pace fooled the Cubs completely.

"Bridges looked swell in there," Grimm said.

"He had a lot of stuff on the ball and took good care of us."

Uniforms were strewn all over the place as the players shed them and rushed to the showers. They were hurrying to catch their train which left for Chicago at 5 p. m. Grimm warned his men to get a good night's rest in Chicago instead of making the trip in sleepers.

Stanley Hack, Cub third baseman, probably expressed the sentiment of all his teammates when he blurted out: "we're not downhearted. It's all even now and we'll lick 'em tomorrow."

Grimm plans to start Big Bill Lee, right hander and leading National League pitcher this year, against the Tigers tomorrow. Lee won 20 games this year, losing only six.

Illini Badly Hurt By Grid's Three I's

Les Lindberg Lost for Time; Chicago Loses Promising Backfield Man

Chicago — (AP) — Hardly recovered from the sting of last week's surprise defeat by Ohio University, Illinois was having trouble today with the three evil "I's" of football—injuries, illness and ineligibility.

On top of the loss of Les Lindberg, their most capable all around back who was hurt in the Ohio University 6 to 0 reverse, the Illini had to limp through practice for the Washington University game Saturday minus five other members of the first squad.

Iowa, Chicago, Northwestern and Minnesota also had similar troubles in lesser numbers. Iowa's Bob Lannon and Gordon Matson, regular ends, and Harry Kelley, a big guard, may be out of Saturday's tussle with South Dakota because of injuries.

Chicago yesterday lost Ralph Belfanz, a good reserve back, by ineligibility, and Northwestern may have to battle Purdue in Saturday's Big Ten opener without tackle Sam Papich and Babe Bender, regular end. Minnesota's regular guards, Vernon Oech and Charles Wilkinson, were out of practice with injuries.

Purdue drilled to perfect timing of its offensive yesterday while Northwestern divided its session between defensive measures and a polishing up of new plays.

Michigan spent another workout on ways and means of stopping Michigan State plays, while Ohio State went through a brisk rehearsal in preparation for Saturday's opening game with Kentucky.

Wisconsin practiced in secret. Iowa brushed up on lateral and forward pass maneuvers, and Minnesota's regulars worked on fundamentals and signals. Bo McMillin drilled Indiana against passes he expects his Alma Mater, Centre College, to toss in the Hoosiers' opening game, while Coach Clark Shaughnessy enlarged the Chicago offense to provide ball carrying help for Jay Berwanger.

Blueboys Dress Up: Look At Foes Plays

Feduris Will Not Be Able To Play This Week; Ease Up Work

Illinois College's Blueboys put on their best bibs and tuckers for yesterday's practice, took a look at Parsons College plays as observed by Coach Raymond Nusspickel at Fairfield, Iowa, last week, and eased up on the hard work as they coast until time for the opening home game of the schedule here this Saturday.

Parsons is going to be plenty tough, Coach Nusspickel told his slightly crippled squad, but they are a non-conference foe, and there isn't going to be any keying done for the game. Take them in stride was the coach's advice.

Abe Feduris, who returned to the campus this week, will not be able to play for the Blueboys this week, and it has not been definitely determined whether he will be able to play with them next week at Millikin. However, the 240 pound co-captain was issued a game uniform and continues to go through the training grind along with the others, although there is a sort of lost look about him.

The left side of the Parsons line is particularly tough, Nusspickel told his squad, as was borne out in the game in which Western Teachers College of Macomb won by a margin of 5 to 3, each side scoring a goal from field and Western scoring a safety for the winning margin.

Parsons has two tough backs in Norvell and Black, the quarter and halfback from the left side of the backfield. L. J. Frank is head coach of the Parsons team, and he is assisted by three men.

Although the local squad is somewhat crippled, the injuries are not serious enough to keep any of the boys out of the line-up. Both Bill Jones and Reynolds, injured Wednesday afternoon, were able to return to the squad yesterday with patches over the breaks in the skin.

There remains some doubt about the starting line-up as yet, with the end position particularly uncertain. Fred Coleman, Hartong, Lorenz and Waller, the latter three freshmen, are all making a scrap for the position, with Waller almost certain to get a chance this week.

Winchester Stores Close For Grid Go

Winchester, Oct. 3.—One of the outstanding games of the Illinois Valley Conference will be played at Winchester Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the Wildcats will meet the last year's valley champs. Both teams have showed considerable strength in their previous games. Carrollton having been a little more impressive with their easy win over Pittsfield.

Coach Chapman was far from satisfied with the showing his boys made last week against White Hall. Consequently a great deal of time this week has been spent on fundamentals.

Two of the Wildcat regulars are likely to miss the opening whistle, Ed. McLaughlin, end, has been out all week with a serious infection while Jones at tackle has been laid up with a cold. It is thought that Jones will be able to play at least part of the game.

The business men of Winchester have decided to make the game a Homecoming affair and practically all merchants will close their places of business during the game.

Estelle Gooden Sent To Asylum

Marion, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Estelle Gooden, former Williamson county clerk who is under indictment for an alleged effort to defraud the county by a simulated robbery, was ordered committed to Anna State Hospital for the Insane today.

A federal warrant charging Mrs. Gooden with violation of the narcotic act was served on her recently but she was not arrested because of illness.

Mrs. Gooden's husband, Pat, signed the complaint on which she was committed to the hospital today. Gooden alleged she tried to kill him and his daughter and was supported by testimony of physicians and federal agents who tried to serve the narcotic warrant.

LEAVE HOME

Police were notified yesterday that Evelyn Crawford, 14, and Paul Stanley Sooy, 13, both of Franklin had disappeared from their homes yesterday. They were reported to have been seen in South Jacksonville at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. C. Scott of Franklin spent Thursday afternoon in the city shopping.

Holds Bruins to Six Hits While His Mates Collect 9 Off Root, Henshaw, Kowalik

By Alan Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Thomas David Bridges, the Tennessee thunderbolt with the crackling curve, came to the rescue of the Detroit Tigers today and hurled them right back into the middle of the coldest battle waged for baseball's world championship in ten years.

The six-hit pitching of the slim speed-ball artist, combined with a blast of semi-freezing weather and a first-inning barrage of base-hits, halted the impetuous charge of the Chicago Cubs. The final score was 8 to 3 as the home team's "G-men" opened fire for the first time with their bats and drove the veteran Charley Root to cover with a four-run fusilade climaxed by Hank Greenberg's first homer of the series.

The Tiger triumph squared matters at one game apiece, with the warfare shifting from this frigid battleground to Chicago tomorrow for the next three games. The enthusiasm of the American league champions, along with 46,742 half-frozen cash customers was cut somewhat short by an injury to the slugging Greenberg, who hurt his left wrist sliding into the plate in the seventh inning.

Examination of Greenberg's arm by the Tiger physician, soon after the game, disclosed injured tendons but no serious damage otherwise and it was expected the big first sacker would be in the third game tomorrow, whether he is handicapped or not.

The rival clubs left on special trains, within an hour after the game, in order to get plenty of rest before resuming the series tomorrow on the home grounds of the National league champions at Wrigley Field. The pitching selections for the third game are Elden Auker, submarine-ball right hander of the Tigers, and big Bill Lee, freshman right-hander of the Cubs.

The Cubs, somewhat chastened by their beating today, still ruled slight favorites as they hustled back to their home grounds. They have been unbeatable at home for a month and they are confident of gaining the advantage again with Lee in the box tomorrow and the great Lon Warneke, shutout hero of yesterday's game, slated to come back for the fourth game on Saturday.

The Cubs acted like most of the onlookers felt this afternoon—half frozen. They were helpless for fully two-thirds of the game against the dynamic speed and curves of Bridges. The slim Tennessee sharpshooter held the Chicagoans hitless for three innings, yielded only three well-spaced hits in the first six frames and eased up after his mates piled up an overwhelming margin by battering three Cub hurlers.

The Tigers had a seven-run lead before the Cubs pushed over their first marker, with the aid of two miscues by Greenberg in the fifth. With his chance for a shutout spoiled, Bridges coasted along for the rest of the game and was in difficulty only once, in the seventh, as Billy Herman drove in the last two Cub runs with a looping hit to left.

The Tigers came out of their batting slump with a bombardment that must have echoed all over Detroit, if not the entire country. Before they took the field for the second game, manager Cochrane exhorted them in effect, as follows: "It's too cold for any fancy business today, men, so you might as well step right up and start smacking everything you can get your bats on."

Following instructions to the letter, the Tigers thumped Root for four successive hits and as many runs. Jo-Jo White looped a hit to left as a starter. Cochrane lashed a double down the right-field line, scoring White. Charley Gehringer, after being robbed of a home run by the wind that carried his towering drive over the right-field wall in foul territory, smashed a single to center, scoring Mickey. Greenberg took a toehold and battered a homer high into the bleacher crowd back of left field.

The only man "out" at this juncture was Root, a veteran of other and celebrated world series bombardments who saw his hopes of a come-back shattered once more. Root has now started four world series games and failed to finish a single one. He was a victim of the famous ten-run outburst by the Athletics in the fourth game of the 1929 series. He was on the mound in Chicago in 1932 when Babe Ruth—who caught a foul ball in the press box today—called his shot and cracked a home run into the center field bleachers.

Little Roy Henshaw, former University of Chicago boy and a southpaw, halted the Tigers onslaught, pitching hitless ball for three innings before going to pieces in the fourth. With two out in this frame, Henshaw nicked Owen with a curve ball. The Cub pitcher then failed to duck a hard smash from the bat of his pitching rival, Bridges. The ball hit him on the leg, caromed off for a base-hit and seemingly left Henshaw a bit wobbly. He lost control quickly, passing White to fill the bases and turning loose a wild pitch, with Cochrane up, to let Owen across the plate. A pass to Cochrane filled the bases again and Henshaw was knocked out of the box by Gehringer's line single to center, which scored Bridges and White.

Right-handed Fabian Kowalik, formerly of the Buffalo Internationals, stopped the Tigers. He yielded only 3 hits for the rest of the game but his wildness contributed to the last Detroit run. This was tallied in the seventh. Cochrane walked, was forced by Gehringer, who advanced when Greenberg was hit by a pitched ball and raced home on Pete Fox's single to right.

It was at this point that Greenberg figured in the episode that caused his injury. Tearing around the bases, big Hank was planning to halt at third base but when Fox's hit caromed away from the Cub fielders in short right, he was sent on home. The relay to Hartnett and Greenberg's headlong slide reached the plate at about the same time. Hank was blocked off, however, and tagged for the third out.

Gehringer, driving in three runs and scoring two others, was the big gun in the Tiger attack. The powerhouse section of the Detroit batting order, after going hitless the day before, generated the decisive batting energy.

Gabby Hartnett rapped out the first Chicago basehit in the fourth. Phil Cavarretta tallied the first run, in the fifth, but it was a gift. Greenberg first fumbled Phil's roller, then tossed wildly to Bridges. Hack's infield out advanced Cavarretta who raced home on Bill Jurges' single to right.

Frank Demaree doubled to the screen, in the sixth, but the blow came after the Tigers had wiped out Lindstrom and Hartnett on a double play and was wasted. In the seventh, with one out, Jurges walked and Kowalik scratched a single down the third base line. Both advanced on Galan's grounder to Gehringer and both scored on Herman's single.

Bridges was touched by Hack for a single to start the ninth but retired the next three batters rapidly, including Chuck Klein, one-time National league batting champion, pinch-hitting for Kowalik. Klein popped a short fly to Goslin.

Despite brief spells of wildness, Bridges never had anything serious to worry about as the Cubs kept popping up his fast ball or hitting his curves into the ground.

The game was played in the coldest series weather since the 1925 series between Washington and Pittsburgh. It was close to freezing this morning and it was in the forties, with a penetrating wind blowing, throughout the game.

Baseball Returns Attract Big Crowd

Second Game of Series is Big Drawing Card for the Journal and Courier

Another large crowd enjoyed the world series game yesterday as the returns were sent out play by play by the Journal and Courier. The crowd filled the seats and stood about the sidewalk, massing near the broadcasting outfit operated by "Count" Landreth.

As Detroit appeared to have the game won in the first inning, considerable enthusiasm prevailed among the watchers. The four-run lead secured by the Tigers was a startling contrast to the shut-out they experienced Wednesday at the hands of Warneke, the Cub star.

The Journal and Courier will broadcast returns of each world series game, and everybody is cordially invited to hear the play-by-play story of the game and follow the plays on the diamond bulletin board.

Wheat Prices Are Two Cents Lower

By John P. Boughan
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Despite commencement of actual military attacks in Ethiopia, wheat prices today fell more than 2 cents a bushel at times.

Big selling to realize profits for recent buyers of wheat dominated the Chicago market, which had made an almost vertical rise of 10 cents in three days and was up about 18 cents within a month. Various trade leaders contended this was sufficient at present unless there should be steps taken at Geneva or elsewhere which would imply a European conflagration.

Demand for wheat continued brisk throughout the day, but most of the time the volume of new speculative buying although large was insufficient to overcome the effects of profit-taking.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼ to 1 cent under yesterday's finish. Dec. 106-106¼, corn ¼-½ down, Dec. 61¼-⅞, oats ¼ off to ¼ up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Good Rally In Stock Market

By Frank MacMillen,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Wall Street took a grip on its war-jangled nerves today. The stock market dipped initially, held, and then staged a good rally.

A number of active issues in the share list ended with gains of 1 to 2 points or so, while commodities, eagerly bought Wednesday, were today mostly mildly reactionary.

The actuality of armed conflict abroad apparently proved less disconcerting than had its prospect. It was noted that the beginning of hostilities had not brought with it the flood of foreign selling feared.

A .6 of a point advance was registered by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, at 47.9. The industrials and utilities did best, with rails still lagging on fears as to the financial fate of some of the weaker carriers.

Dealings in the stock exchange, quite active at the opening of trading on slightly lower prices, quickly settled down to a calm pace as stocks began to retrace a fair proportion of Wednesday's losses. Turnover was 1,499,180 shares.

FARMERS ATTACK EROSION PROBLEM ON THREE FRONTS

Urbana, Ill.—Illinois farmers and others working to check soil losses on more than 19 million acres of the state's farm land are attacking the problem from three different angles, according to H. L. Buckhardt, erosion extension specialist coordinator at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. These are: mechanical control, vegetative control and land use, including good management.

Mechanical control includes properly constructed terraces, gully control structures and contour furrows. Terraces, carefully maintained, help to prevent sheet erosion and gullying. Where gullies are already formed, check dams and other structures will slow down the water, causing soil to be deposited rather than carried away, Buckhardt said.

Contour furrows check the flow of water, allowing much of it to be absorbed and thus helping to prevent runoff and erosion. Such furrows are particularly adapted to the improving of pastures.

Among the various vegetative control methods, such cover crops as wheat, rye and first-year sweet clover are effective in controlling erosion. Experiments have shown that comparatively little soil is lost from fields growing good stands of cover crops, either during fall or spring rains. Permanent vegetation, where it is adaptable to the farming system, is an excellent means of preventing soil washing. Alfalfa and bluegrass excel all other crops for erosion control, Buckardt said. Where the soil is poor and badly eroded trees are superior to grass and hay crops.

Under the land use phase of erosion control, crop rotations, controlled livestock grazing and the use of special practices are considered the most important. Proper rotations which include legumes increase the organic matter content, thus helping to prevent soil washing. Controlled grazing prevents the surface from being denuded of soil-binding vegetation, while the use of special practices such as contour farming and strip cropping may meet special problems on the individual farms or fields.

Live Hog Prices 10 Cents Higher

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Live hog prices pushed a little higher today as receipts continued small. The market closed strong to 10 cents higher and the top was $11.00. Only 4,500 swine were left in the fresh supply after packers withdrew their 2,500 ordered direct.

The top price of $11.00 was paid for 62 hogs averaging 212 pounds and 50 animals weighing about 199 pounds each.

Cattle prices were strong to 25 cents higher, except stocker and feeders, which held steady. Seventeen steers averaging 1,256 pounds brought the top of $12.35. Curtailed cattle marketings helped sellers boost present quotations. Receipts were only 4,500.

Fat lambs closed 15-25 cents higher. Small killers paid a $9.15 top price for 103 native lambs. Sheep were firm and feeding lambs about steady.

Wheat Prices Are Two Cents Lower

By John P. Boughan
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Despite commencement of actual military attacks in Ethiopia, wheat prices today fell more than 2 cents a bushel at times.

Big selling to realize profits for recent buyers of wheat dominated the Chicago market, which had made an almost vertical rise of 10 cents in three days and was up about 18 cents within a month. Various trade leaders contended this was sufficient at present unless there should be steps taken at Geneva or elsewhere which would imply a European conflagration.

Demand for wheat continued brisk throughout the day, but most of the time the volume of new speculative buying although large was insufficient to overcome the effects of profit-taking.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼ to 1 cent under yesterday's finish, Dec. 106-106¼, corn ¼-½ down, Dec. 61¼-½, oats ¼ off to ¼ up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Good Rally In Stock Market

By Frank MacMillen.
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Wall Street took a grip on its war-jangled nerves today. The stock market dipped initially, held, and then staged a good rally.

A number of active issues in the share list ended with gains of 1 to 2 points or so, while commodities, eagerly bought Wednesday, were today mostly mildly reactionary.

The actuality of armed conflict abroad apparently proved less disconcerting than had its prospect. It was noted that the beginning of hostilities had not brought with it the flood of foreign selling feared.

A .6 of a point advance was registered by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, at 47.9. The industrials and utilities did best, with rails still lagging on fears as to the financial fate of some of the weaker carriers.

Dealings in the stock exchange, quite active at the opening of trading on slightly lower prices, quickly settled down to a calm pace as stocks began to retrace a fair proportion of Wednesday's losses. Turnover was 1,499,180 shares.

FARMERS ATTACK EROSION PROBLEM ON THREE FRONTS

Urbana, Ill.—Illinois farmers and others working to check soil losses on more than 19 million acres of the state's farm land are attacking the problem from three different angles, according to H. L. Buckardt, erosion extension specialist coordinator at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. These are: mechanical control, vegetative control and land use, including good management.

Mechanical control includes properly constructed terraces, gully control structures and contour furrows. Terraces, carefully maintained, help to prevent sheet erosion and gullying. Where gullies are already formed, check dams and other structures will slow down the water, causing soil to be deposited rather than carried away, Buckhardt said.

Contour furrows check the flow of water, allowing much of it to be absorbed and thus helping to prevent runoff and erosion. Such furrows are particularly adapted to the improving of pastures.

Among the various vegetative control methods, such cover crops as wheat, rye and first-year sweet clover are effective in controlling erosion. Experiments have shown that comparatively little soil is lost from fields growing good stands of cover crops, either during fall or spring rains. Permanent vegetation, where it is adaptable to the farming system, is an excellent means of preventing soil washing. Alfalfa and bluegrass excel all other crops for erosion control, Buckardt said. Where the soil is poor and badly eroded trees are superior to grass and hay crops.

Under the land use phase of erosion control, crop rotations, controlled livestock grazing and the use of special practices are considered the most important. Proper rotations which include legumes increase the organic matter content, thus helping to prevent soil washing. Controlled grazing prevents the surface from being denuded of soil-binding vegetation while the use of special practices such as contour farming and strip cropping may meet special problems on the individual farms or fields.

Live Hog Prices 10 Cents Higher

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Live hog prices pushed a little higher today as receipts continued small. The market closed strong to 10 cents higher and the top was $11.00. Only 4,500 swine were left in the fresh supply after packers withdrew their 2,500 ordered direct.

The top price of $11.00 was paid for 62 hogs averaging 212 pounds and 50 animals weighing about 199 pounds each.

Cattle prices were strong to 25 cents higher, except stocker and feeders, which held steady. Seventeen steers averaging 1,255 pounds brought the top of $12.35. Curtailed cattle marketings helped sellers boost present quotations. Receipts were only 4,500.

Fat lambs closed 15-25 cents higher. Small killers paid a $9.15 top price for 103 native lambs. Sheep were firm and feeding lambs about steady.

ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

Mrs. Matilda Coultas of Alexander entertained a few friends at a comfort tacking in honor of her niece, Mrs. Donald Richardson Tuesday afternoon. While the guests were working on the comfort Mrs. Richardson gave a very interesting description of her visit to Yellowstone Park.

A social hour was enjoyed at which time the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Russell Knight and daughter of near Virginia were shopping in Jacksonville yesterday.

BABY TADPOLES JUST A FRESHMAN PRANK

So Texas Christian Returns Name to Its Mascot

Fort Worth, Tex.—(AP)—It all was a mistake about Herman, and the boys at Texas Christian University who named their horned frog mascot "Hermania" after finding nine baby frogs in the pen have apologized.

Freshmen pranksters admitted putting the young frogs in the pen, and Herman's guardians have resolved only a veterinarian's certificate will persuade them to change his name again to one more suitable for a wife and mother.

Order Col. Davis to Keep Eye on Strike

Fear Trouble in Tannery Strike at Hartford

Hartford, Ill.—(AP)—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black of the Illinois militia has ordered Col. Robert W. Davis of Carbondale here to act as military observer at the International Shoe Co. tannery, where pickets prevented attempts to re-open the plant.

Black's order came last night despite the fact there had been no request for national guard troops.

Between 1500 and 2000 men and women appeared at the company plant yesterday when officials decided to reopen after a shutdown that began May 20. The plant was closed then when the Leather Workers' Union called a strike.

The pickets turned away workers, but permitted company officials to enter the plant. The officials said nearly 75 per cent of the old workers had indicated a desire to return to work.

Mrs. Warren E. Coultas of Winchester was a Thursday shopper in the city.

Mrs. Hersey Crane of Franklin was among those shopping in the city yesterday.

State Democrats Split Over Head Of Party Ticket

Sen. James Monroe Advises Horner Not to Seek Re-Election in 1936

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—A primary fight among Illinois Democrats over the governorship became more probable today.

There was silence at the executive mansion as Democratic politicians at the state house pondered the declaration of Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago that "I have no candidate for governor."

Governor Horner, an announced candidate for a second term, made no comment.

His supporters went ahead with their efforts, started several months ago, to line up political forces to give the chief executive the renomination next April. One of the Horner lieutenants said there was "no political significance" in the Kelly statement.

The mayor's failure to recognize the governor, who also comes from Chicago, as a candidate confirmed recurrent rumors that all is not well within the leadership of the majority party and that the Cook county organization might like to have another candidate for governor on the 1936 ticket.

It set at rest recent state house reports that Democratic peace has been made and that the Kelly-Nash support had been given the governor.

Kelly's declaration, made at Chicago yesterday, was taken in some places to mean that the Chicagoans, if they stay away from the Horner camp, so far haven't picked their own man for the job.

From Senator James O. Monroe of Collinsville, a Democrat who has frequently criticized the governor, came a suggestion that Mr. Horner should not run again. It was learned that Monroe wrote the governor that he would "certainly be defeated" in 1936 and might endanger the Democratic ticket.

Protestant Bishop Rt.Rev.T.F.Gailor Dies in Tennessee

79 Year Old Chancellor of University of South Succumbs Today

Sewanee, Tenn.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Thomas Frank Gailor, oldest bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in this country and chancellor of the University of the South, died here early today. He as 79 years old.

Death resulted from a stomach disorder.

The eminent cleric recently celebrated both his birthday and the 56th anniversary of his ordination.

For the last three or four years he had been subject to attacks of indigestion but had remained both active in his duties at the university and as bishop of the diocese of Tennessee. He traveled frequently over the state, visiting the parishes in his charge.

When Bishop Gailor became gravely ill several days ago, his family gathered at the summer home here. His permanent residence as in Memphis.

One of his daughters, Mrs. Richard Cleveland, daughter-in-law of former President Grover Cleveland, came from her home in Baltimore. Miss Charlotte Gailor, his other daughter, made her home with her father. His only son is Frank Hoyt Gailor, trustee of Shelby county (Memphis).

King Boris Object Of Plot, Is Report

Call Out Garrison to Give Protection to King

Sofia, Bulgaria—(AP)—Machine guns and bayonets of the Sofia garrison were turned out today for the second time within a year and a half to protect the life of King Boris III.

Authorities announced they had detected a plot to assassinate Boris today—the day on which he was to celebrate the anniversary of his accession to the throne 17 years ago.

The capital was placed under a state of siege, and all traffic was stopped by military order. Soldiers occupied the central railway station and military guards covered most public buildings.

Numerous persons identified closely with the regime of former Premier Gueorgueff were under arrest.

CHAPTER I

AFTER a long drouse, America decides to wake up. A lanky giant, carefree under the sun as long and brown as the great rivers that loop across its plains—and as unexpectedly powerful too, when its course is obstructed—the giant yawns, stretches, looks out over the continent-wide panorama of busy life and begins sweeping the vermin that have been pestering it into the sea.

What is the giant like, and what are the vermin, and how is it all happening? To answer calls for a moving picture camera with a thousand lens; a camera that can look into every aspect of American life—the good and the bad, the spectacular and the humdrum; picking up a myriad unconnected pictures and displaying them in a pattern which falls together, at the last, like a jigsaw puzzle when it is completed.

Pictures of America! America being heedless and selfish. America coming to its senses and girding for a fight. America welding brain and muscle into one gigantic job of housecleaning—the world's greatest nation, displaying its raw strength and its reckless vitality and its salty, saving humor in a triumphant struggle to show that Uncle Sam is still the homely and admirable chap he was in his youth. . . .

A good-looking girl, with maize-yellow hair and eyes that haven't looked at the world long enough to know how seamy its underside can be, looks up from her table in a night club . . . she's thrilled to death to be there and she thinks she's being just a little bit wicked in a perfectly nice way . . . she looks up from her table and smiles at the sandy-haired chap who is beaming down at her, and she says "How do you do, Mr. Harkins?" . . .

A clerk in an airy Washington office yanks a green drawer out of a ceiling-high filing cabinet, riffles through it with practiced fingers, and draws out a card. On the card there is a man's picture, along with 10 inky smudges and half a dozen lines of type; and pinned to it is a smaller card, colored red with the word "Wanted!" on it in big black letters. . . .

A big automobile stops in a lane by the veranda of a western ranch house, and a hard-faced man sticks his head out of the front window, and a broad-shouldered youth gets up from the veranda steps and says, "Okay, Joey," and puts himself and his suitcase into the car and it spins off to the northeast over the rolling, treeless hills where the famous bad men of the old west used to have their hide outs. . . .

A sallow, worried-looking man sits at a desk in a Chicago doctor's office. The telephone jangles; he answers, says, "Yeah . . . yeah . . . I'll be right over," and takes a last, furtive look around the place before he locks up and goes out.

A man in a Chicago apartment writes down a phone number on the varnished woodwork over a closet door. . . . An ambitious youngster fresh out of college sells a big sedan to a well-dressed stranger, and goes home congratulating himself and trying to figure how soon he'll have enough money to get married. . . . A politician grins as his visitor shuts the office door behind him, and puts a fat sheaf of bonds into his safe. . . . A tired police detective drinks a glass of beer and says to his friend, "Yeee, Bill, it's like this—the big rug's got an in down at city hall." . . .

And four very tough-looking gentlemen walk into a small-town bank in the middle west, swing gun muzzles menacingly, and walk out presently with a small fortune in cash and securities. . . .

So what? So it's all part of the panorama, and it all makes sense if you string it together right. It makes sense because some people are foolish and some people are downright bad and some other people are both wise and good; and out of it all you can get a new slant on your America, and perhaps a new pride in it, and a new understanding of what is going on in it.

We'll start with the girl in the night club.

• • •

JEAN DUNN smiled at Bobby Wallace and sat down at their table in the Golden Feather night club, saying to herself, "That man is kind of good-looking, and he's been watching me ever since I came in. I wonder who he is?"

Blissfully ignorant of this, Bobby Wallace—who was not the good looking man she referred to—took his seat opposite her and picked up the conversation which the general stir incident to the end of the last dance had interrupted.

"Listen, Jean, I mean it," he said. "You don't want to slave in a city office all your life. Wouldn't it be more fun—I mean, even if we didn't have such an awful lot, just at first—aw, Jean honey, say you'll marry me!"

He leaned toward her, and his honest, snub-nosed face was very earnest. Jean put the good-looking stranger out of her head and reached across to pat Bobby's hand.

"Bobby, I like you a lot," she said. "You're just a peach. But can't you see my side of it? We're both of us so young. There's so much to do, and so much to see, before we get respectable and settle down. I'm spoiled, I guess, but I don't want to be just a housewife just yet. I want—oh, Bobby, I want to play. I've only been away from home for six months. I like being on my own. I like being independent. Don't you see I want to enjoy it a while?"

Bobby sighed.

"You were in college for four years," he protested.

"Yes, and if you call that being independent, you're crazy," she retorted. "I mean being out on my own, earning my own living and all. Don't you see?"

"But we could get the neatest little apartment," said Bobby, as if that answered her objections. "Regular little parlor-bedroom-and-bath arrangement, and you wouldn't be tied down. Why, you'd be more independent than you are now. You'd be more your own boss. You wouldn't have to trot down to an old office every morning. And pretty soon we could buy one of those new sport roadsters, and go—"

• • •

"PRETTY soon!" said Jean. "Bobby dear, I don't want to hurt your feelings, but I'm just not one of these nice home bodies that can start on a shoestring. It's not as it—" she paused, trying to pick her words tactfully—"Bobby, if you were on a regular salary it might be different. But you know yourself that selling autos is awfully, awfully irregular. One month we'd be flush and the next one we'd be living on salmon and crackers. The strain'd be too much. . . . I guess I'm pretty selfish," she finished apologetically.

"No, no," said Bobby hastily. Then he said, "You mean—if I—suppose if I had a nest egg laid away—say a couple thousand dollars—would you look at things differently?"

She smiled at him, and Bobby reflected irritably that no girl with long droopy eyelashes ought to smile in that way unless she wants to be kissed.

"You make me sound like a cheap little gold-digger, Bobby," she said.

"But would you?" he persisted.

"Bobby," she said, "I like you better than any man I know or ever have known. I'd marry you tomorrow, only I'm not ready to marry anybody yet. And then—please don't be hurt, Bobby—I do think that if we did get married, we ought to be better prepared financially."

"Then," pursued Bobby, "if I can lay away two thousand dollars, will you marry me?"

She smiled at him with the fondness of a friendship that extended back to childhood; and she reflected that it would take Bobby, the newly launched auto salesman, a very long time to lay away any part of two thousand dollars.

"You do it, and then come and see me," she said, laughing. "Listen, the music's starting again. Let's dance."

BABY TADPOLES JUST A FRESHMAN PRANK

So Texas Christian Returns Name to Its Mascot

Fort Worth, Tex.—(AP)—It all was a mistake about Herman, and the boys at Texas Christian University who named their horned frog mascot "Hermania" after finding nine baby frogs in the pen have apologized.

Freshmen pranksters admitted putting the young frogs in the pen, and Herman's guardians have resolved only a veterinarian's certificate will persuade them to change his name again to one more suitable for a wife and mother.

Order Col. Davis to Keep Eye on Strike

Fear Trouble in Tannery Strike at Hartford

Hartford, Ill.—(AP)—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black of the Illinois militia has ordered Col. Robert W. Davis of Carbondale here to act as military observer at the International Shoe Co. tannery, where pickets prevented attempts to re-open the plant.

Black's order came last night despite the fact there had been no request for national guard troops.

Between 1500 and 2000 men and women appeared at the company plant yesterday when officials decided to re-open after a shutdown that began May 20. The plant was closed then when the Leather Workers' Union called a strike.

The pickets turned away workers, but permitted company officials to enter the plant. The officials said nearly 75 per cent of the old workers had indicated a desire to return to work.

Mrs. Warren E. Coultas of Winchester was a Thursday shopper in the city.

Mrs. Hersey Crane of Franklin was among those shopping in the city yesterday.

CHAPTER 1

AFTER a long drowse, America decides to wake up. A lanky giant, carefree under the sun as long and brown as the great rivers that loop across its plains—and as unexpectedly powerful too, when its course is obstructed . . . the giant yawns, stretches, looks out over the continent-wide panorama of busy life, and begins sweeping the vermin that have been pestering it into the sea.

What is the giant like, and what are the vermin, and how is it all happening? To answer calls for a moving picture camera with a thousand lens; a camera that can look into every aspect of American life the good and the bad, the spectacular and the humdrum, picking up a myriad unconnected pictures and displaying them in a pattern which falls together, at the last, like a jigsaw puzzle when it is completed.

Pictures of America! America being heedless and selfish. America coming to its senses and girding for a fight. America welding brain and muscle into one gigantic job of housecleaning—the world's greatest nation, displaying its raw strength and its reckless vitality and its salty, saving humor in a triumphant struggle to show that Uncle Sam is still the homely and admirable chap he was in his youth. . . .

A good-looking girl, with maize-yellow hair and eyes that haven't looked at the world long enough to know how seamy its underside can be, looks up from her table in a night club . . . she's thrilled to death to be there and she thinks she's being just a little bit wicked in a perfectly nice way . . . she looks up from her table and smiles at the sandy-haired chap who is beaming down at her, and she says, "How do you do, Mr. Harkins?" . . .

A clerk in an airy Washington office yanks a green drawer out of a ceiling-high filing cabinet, riffles through it with practiced fingers, and draws out a card. On the card there is a man's picture, along with 10 inky smudges and half a dozen lines of type; and pinned to it is a smaller card, colored red, with the word "Wanted!" on it in big black letters. . . .

A big automobile stops in a lane by the veranda of a western ranch house, and a hard-faced man sticks his head out of the front window, and a broad-shouldered youth gets up from the veranda steps and says, "Okay, Joey," and puts himself and his suitcase into the car and it spins off to the northeast over the rolling, treeless hills where the famous bad men of the old west used to have their hideouts. . . .

A sallow, worried-looking man sits at a desk in a Chicago doctor's office. The telephone jangles; he answers, says, "Yeah . . . yeah . . . I'll be right over," and takes a last, furtive look around the place before he locks up and goes out. . . .

A man in a Chicago apartment writes down a phone number on the varnished woodwork over a closet door. . . . An ambitious youngster fresh out of college sells a big sedan to a well-dressed stranger, and goes home congratulating himself and trying to figure how soon he'll have enough money to get married. . . . A politician grins as his visitor shuts the office door behind him, and puts a fat sheaf of bonds into his safe. . . . A tired police detective drinks a glass of beer and says to his friend, "Y'see, Bill, it's like this—the big lug's got an in down at city hall." . . .

And four very tough-looking gentlemen walk into a small-town bank in the middle west, swing gun muzzles menacingly, and walk out presently with a small fortune in cash and securities. . . .

So what? So it's all part of the panorama, and it all makes sense if you string it together right. It makes sense because some people are foolish and some people are downright bad and some other people are both wise and good; and out of it all you can get a new slant on your America, and perhaps a new pride in it, and a new understanding of what is going on in it.

We'll start with the girl in the night club.

Bobby Wallace

• • •

JEAN DUNN smiled at Bobby Wallace and sat down at their table in the Golden Feather night club, saying to herself, "That man is kind of good-looking, and he's been watching me ever since I came in. I wonder who he is?"

Blissfully ignorant of this, Bobby Wallace—who was not the good looking man she referred to—took his seat opposite her and picked up the conversation which the general stir incident to the end of the last dance had interrupted.

"Listen, Jean, I mean it," he said. "You don't want to slave in a city office all your life. Wouldn't it be more fun—I mean, even if we didn't have such an awful lot, just at first—aw, Jean honey, say you'll marry me!"

He leaned toward her, and his honest, snub-nosed face was very earnest. Jean put the good-looking stranger out of her head and reached across to pat Bobby's hand.

"Bobby, I like you a lot," she said. "You're just a peach. But can't you see my side of it? We're both of us so young. There's so much to do, and so much to see, before we get respectable and settle down. I'm spoiled, I guess, but I don't want to be just a housewife just yet, I want—oh, Bobby, I want to play. I've only been away from home for six months. I like being on my own. I like being independent. Don't you see I want to enjoy it a while?"

Bobby sighed.

"You were in college for four years," he protested.

"Yes, and if you call that being independent, you're crazy," she retorted. "I mean being out on my own, earning my own living and all. Don't you see?"

"But we could get the neatest little apartment," said Bobby, as if that answered her objections. "Regular little parlor-bedroom-and-bath arrangement, and you wouldn't be tied down. Why, you'd be more independent than you are now. You'd be more your own boss. You wouldn't have to trot down to an old office every morning. And pretty soon we could buy one of those new sport roadsters, and go—"

• • •

"PRETTY soon!" said Jean. "Bobby dear, I don't want to hurt your feelings, but I'm just not one of these nice home bodies that can start on a shoestring. It's not as if—" she paused, trying to pick her words tactfully—"Bobby, if you were on a regular salary it might be different. But you know yourself that selling autos is awfully, awfully irregular. One month we'd be flush and the next one we'd be living on salmon and crackers. The strain'd be too much. . . . I guess I'm pretty selfish," she finished apologetically.

"No, no," said Bobby hastily. Then he said, "You mean—if I—suppose if I had a nest egg laid away—say a couple thousand dollars—would you look at things differently?"

She smiled at him, and Bobby reflected irritably that no girl with long droopy eyelashes ought to smile in that way unless she wants to be kissed.

"You make me sound like a cheap little gold-digger, Bobby," she said.

"But would you?" he persisted.

"Bobby," she said, "I like you better than any man I know or ever have known. I'd marry you tomorrow, only I'm not ready to marry anybody yet. And then—please don't be hurt, Bobby—I do think that if we did get married, we ought to be better prepared financially."

"Then," pursued Bobby, "if I can lay away two thousand dollars, will you marry me?"

She smiled at him with the fondness of a friendship that extended back to childhood; and she reflected that it would take Bobby, the newly launched auto salesman, a very long time to lay away any part of two thousand dollars.

"You do it, and then come and see me," she said, laughing. "Listen, the music's starting again. Let's dance."

State Democrats Split Over Head Of Party Ticket

Sen. James Monroe Advises Horner Not to Seek Re-Election in 1936

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—A primary fight among Illinois Democrats over the governorship became more probable today.

There was silence at the executive mansion as Democratic politicians at the state house pondered the declaration of Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago that "I have no candidate for governor."

Governor Horner, an announced candidate for a second term, made no comment.

His supporters went ahead with their efforts, started several months ago, to line up political forces to give the chief executive the renomination next April. One of the Horner lieutenants said there was "no political significance" in the Kelly statement.

The mayor's failure to recognize the governor, who also comes from Chicago, as a candidate confirmed recurrent rumors that all is not well within the leadership of the majority party and that the Cook county organization might like to have another candidate for governor on the 1936 ticket.

It set at rest recent state house reports that Democratic peace has been made and that the Kelly-Nash support had been given the governor.

Kelly's declaration, made at Chicago yesterday, was taken in some places to mean that the Chicagoans, if they stay away from the Horner camp, so far haven't picked their own man for the job.

From Senator James O. Monroe of Collinsville, a Democrat who has frequently criticized the governor, came a suggestion that Mr. Horner should not run again. It was learned that Monroe wrote the governor that he would "certainly be defeated" in 1936 and might endanger the Democratic ticket.

Plans For Projects Here Progress City Council Is Informed

Assurance that the city project for a municipal light and power plant grant has been officially awarded, and that the loan is now being considered in Washington was given to the city council at its meeting last night by Special Counsel O. N. Foreman, and the council sped its project for enlarging and rehabilitating the waterworks by employing C. Ray Gruny as special counsel to represent the city on the waterworks project.

Attorney Gruny resigned as city attorney when the council expressed its desire to have him as special counsel on the waterworks project. His successor was not appointed last night.

Special Counsel Foreman read a telegram from C. H. Bauer, state director of Public Works Administration projects, to the effect that President F. D. Roosevelt has approved the grant of $189,000 and that the loan would be acted upon later. Foreman continued, stating that it was his belief that the loan was being given prompt attention in Washington.

On Foreman's suggestion, the council went into executive session immediately after disposing of a large pile of routine business, to consider some of the details in connection with the power plant project. The attorney told the council that the loan and grant originally was alloted, but that the loan had been withdrawn in view of the city's action of July 1. Prompt action in withdrawing the cancellation of the project, however, resulted in the project's re-instatement, without affecting the status of the grant, but causing a delay in final action on the loan.

Alexander Van Praag, of the firm of Warren and Van Praag, Decatur engineers in charge of the municipal power plant project, also addressed the council, seconding Foreman's request for an executive session, to which persons other than members of the council were barred.

Regrets Resignation

Gruny's resignation was accepted by Mayor F. J. Blackburn with regrets. The mayor lauded the city attorney for the interest he had taken in civic affairs. Alderman W. H. Cocking made the motion to employ Gruny as special counsel on the waterworks project, estimated to cost about $500,000 and involving a mass of detailed work. The project recently was awarded the city by the Public Works Administration, with the condition that contracts be let by Dec. 15. In order to whip the project into shape during the next two months, it was deemed advisable to secure the services of an attorney.

A representative of the A. C. Allyn and Company, bond house, Chicago, told the council that his firm was ready to offer the city from $1200 to $1500 more than they could obtain from the federal government for their bonds, if they would give him a commitment on the issue immediately. His request was tabled until the newly appointed attorney had an opportunity to study the situation and report to the council.

The Allyn and company representative pointed out that the government was in favor of private financing for projects of this type, because it would release more money to be used in other projects. He added that if the PWA objected to the city selling the bonds privately, his firm would withdraw immediately.

Verbal tiffs between Aldermen William Cocking and George Brown enlivened the meeting, devoted to clearing up the congestion of almost a month's time. The meeting was the first to be held since the special meetings of over three weeks ago. Alderman Brown lodged a protest against almost every department of the city as Mayor F. J. Blackburn called for reports, but most of the time the council passed his remarks without taking action upon them.

Brown started one battle over a move of the employes of the fire department to have diverted to the fireman's pension fund the two percent fire tax collected from foreign insurance companies doing business in the city. Brown based his objections to a change in the old ordinance setting up a fireman's pension fund here on the grounds that the insurance companies paid the tax for the purpose of aiding municipalities in purchasing firefighting equipment.

To Buy Equipment

The two percent tax, as now collected, is placed in the fire special fund, and goes toward the purchase of equipment. According to a 1933 state law, however, it is now possible to divert this tax into the fireman's pension fund if the council approves. It was explained that the pension fund must have at least $15,000 on hand before it can begin paying pensions. The change would put the fire tax in the pension fund until there is a total accumulation of $25,000, at which time the fire tax would again be diverted to the equipment fund. There is not sufficient in the present pension fund to permit payment to super-annuated or disabled firemen, it was pointed out. The pension fund is required by state law, the council was told. The ordinance making the change was given its first reading last night and will be called up for further consideration at the next regular meeting.

The council over-rode Brown's objections to appointing a special committee of aldermen, one from each ward, to act with the engineers and attorneys in furthering the municipal light and power project, and the waterworks project. Brown shouted that it was the council's business, and that the council should have a chance to know what is going on in these works, and that he did not want to be a party to any "railroading." The council gave the mayor authority to appoint the committee by a 6-1 vote, Brown opposing. Alderman F. R. Mathews did not attend the meeting.

Taking action first as the city council, and then as the commissioners of the road district, the body heard a petition to vacate East Independence avenue from 1045 feet east of the intersection of E. Independence and Myrtle street, then running easterly along the street to an intersection with Lisbon avenue, a total distance of 1430 feet. The closing of the street, it was explained, was desirous because the bridge which crosses Mauvaisterre street at this point is in a sad state of repair. As commissioners of the road district, the body set the date of Oct. 19, 2:00 p. m., as the time for a hearing to be held on the proposal, which was signed by 52 persons. The place of the meeting is to be named in notices to be posted by the clerk of the road district.

To Name Street

The Jacksonville Art Association's efforts to have the name of Strawn Way placed on the street now known as Dunlap Court or Alley A advanced to the ordinance stage when the council authorized the city attorney to draw an ordinance changing the name of the street, over the protest of Alderman Brown. The street has never been officially named Dunlap Court, it was pointed out. Alderman Brown said he had interviewed a number of people on Alley A and that they objected to changing the name. The petition for naming the street Strawn Way was signed by the officers of the Art Association, and the committee in charge of the project.

Reports from the city treasurer, Gertrude Hamilton, showing a balance of $26,958 in the general fund, $66,871, in the special funds, and $141,128 in the special assessment account; from the health department; from Justice of Peace A. B. Opperman, Chief of Police Frank Kiloran, and C. J. Wright, superintendent of the water department, showing collections for August of $6,840.23, and water sold in the month amounting to $6,748.18, and City Clerk John R. Phillips, showing collections of $613.75 for August, were placed on file.

LIFE OF ORIENT DISCUSSED AT B. P. W. C. MEET

Prof. F. B. Oxtoby Addresses Business Woman's Club Last Night

"The Life of the Orient" showing characteristics and customs of the people of the Near East was most interestingly portrayed in an illustrated lecture given by Prof. F. B. Oxtoby, Thursday evening at the meeting of the Business and Professional Woman's club, held at the Peacock Inn.

Supper was served at 6:15 and during this time, Miss Hester Burbridge introduced the new members and guests, also Miss Dorothea Fitch, representing the New York Concert association, who spoke of the Jacksonville Cooperative Concert organization, which is sponsoring a series of concerts for the winter season.

Following this the business session was in charge of Miss Charlotte Ryan, the vice-president, and announcements for the month were made. The musical program given by Miss Lorine Deweese, of the faculty of the School for the Blind was a delightful part of the program. Her numbers were "Autumn Sadness" by Nevin; Slumber Song, Gaynor. Miss DeWeese was accompanied by Miss Alice Mathis, of the faculty of the School for the Blind.

Prof. Oxtoby in emphasizing the great appeal which the orient has for those who travel there said, "Early in life, as a student I longed to travel in the Near East. Before the World War a trip to the orient was filled with interest, however, a more recent visit in Palestine, Egypt and Constantinople brought to my notice great changes, not only in the cities but in the very life of the people. Some of the romance is gone by the new customs creeping in. Now a traveler may go through Palestine in twenty four hours. Formerly it took days on horseback, now the good roads make it possible for automobiles to traverse the country.

"There is no depression in Jerusalem," said Dr. Oxtoby, "the Jews are coming into the country in great numbers and in industry the cities are all thriving. Palestine is a small country, one sixth the size of Illinois, yet it has a tremendous variety of climate. The Dead Sea is the farthest point below the ocean of any other place in the world. There are two seasons, the rainy season and the months in which it never rains.

"The old Orient inside the walls has narrow streets, old shops and buildings. Outside the streets are wide and automobiles and trucks are on the fine roads from Jerusalem to Damascus and along the Dead Sea. The drive to Nazareth is one of the most beautiful."

Dr. Oxtoby stated that he was intrigued by the art displayed in the shopping. He soon noted the three prices, the American price, The price for the Jews and the native price. He stressed the fact that the visitor should never pay the price asked.

The pictures showed the beautiful coloring of the native costumes, the picturesque shops and caravans of the old Orient. The seven wells one of them depicted with the grooves from use during 4000 years, also the Virgin Spring at Nazareth, the well used in the time of Christ were pictures attracting close attention. The flowers along the Sea of Galilee, the Shepherds with their sheep and cattle, the primative oxen teams, the women grinding the meal by hand were all deeply interesting, especially in contrast to the modern scenes of autotrucks and garages. The scene of the English soldiers marching in the streets, and the picture of the new city of TelAviv, the home of fifty thousand Jews, modern in every way an unusual study in contrasts of the old and new orient.

It was announced that the next meeting would be Oct. 17, in charge of the Education committee, of which Miss Rose Ranson is chairman. New members are: Miss Lillian Carter, Mrs. Verna Massey, Mrs. Hala Benson, Miss Hattie Larean, Mrs. Margaret Brown. Guests were: Miss Dorthea Hitch, Mrs. F. B. Oxtoby, Rev. and Mrs. McKendree Blair, Miss Alice Mathis. Supper committee included: the Misses Fern Taylor, Jane Crawford, Helen Standberg.

Plans For Projects Here Progress City Council Is Informed

Assurance that the city project for a municipal light and power plant grant has been officially awarded, and that the loan is now being considered in Washington was given to the city council at its meeting last night by Special Counsel O. N. Foreman, and the council sped its project for enlarging and rehabilitating the waterworks by employing C. Ray Gruny as special counsel to represent the city on the waterworks project.

Attorney Gruny resigned as city attorney when the council expressed its desire to have him as special counsel on the waterworks project. His successor was not appointed last night.

Special Counsel Foreman read a telegram from C. H. Bauer, state director of Public Works Administration projects, to the effect that President F. D. Roosevelt has approved the grant of $189,000 and that the loan would be acted upon later. Foreman continued, stating that it was his belief that the loan was being given prompt attention in Washington.

On Foreman's suggestion, the council went into executive session immediately after disposing of a large pile of routine business, to consider some of the details in connection with the power plant project. The attorney told the council that the loan and grant originally was alloted, but that the loan had been withdrawn in view of the city's action of July 1. Prompt action in withdrawing the cancellation of the project, however, resulted in the project's re-instatement, without affecting the status of the grant, but causing a delay in final action on the loan.

Alexander Van Praag, of the firm of Warren and Van Praag, Decatur engineers in charge of the municipal power plant project, also addressed the council, seconding Foreman's request for an executive session, to which persons other than members of the council were barred.

Regrets Resignation

Gruny's resignation was accepted by Mayor F. J. Blackburn with regrets. The mayor lauded the city attorney for the interest he had taken in civic affairs. Alderman W. H. Cocking made the motion to employ Gruny as special counsel on the waterworks project, estimated to cost about $500,000 and involving a mass of detailed work. The project recently was awarded the city by the Public Works Administration, with the condition that contracts be let by Dec. 15. In order to whip the project into shape during the next two months, it was deemed advisable to secure the services of an attorney.

A representative of the A. C. Allyn and Company, bond house, Chicago, told the council that his firm was ready to offer the city from $1200 to $1500 more than they could obtain from the federal government for their bonds, if they would give him a commitment on the issue immediately. His request was tabled until the newly appointed attorney had an opportunity to study the situation and report to the council.

The Allyn and company representative pointed out that the government was in favor of private financing for projects of this type, because it would release more money to be used in other projects. He added that if the PWA objected to the city selling the bonds privately, his firm would withdraw immediately.

Verbal tiffs between Aldermen William Cocking and George Brown enlivened the meeting, devoted to clearing up the congestion of almost a month's time. The meeting was the first to be held since the special meetings of over three weeks ago. Alderman Brown lodged a protest against almost every department of the city as Mayor F. J. Blackburn called for reports, but most of the time the council passed his remarks without taking action upon them.

Brown started one battle over a move of the employes of the fire department to have diverted to the fireman's pension fund the two percent fire tax collected from foreign insurance companies doing business in the city. Brown based his objections to a change in the old ordinance setting up a fireman's pension fund here on the grounds that the insurance companies paid the tax for the purpose of aiding municipalities in purchasing firefighting equipment.

To Buy Equipment

The two percent tax, as now collected, is placed in the fire special fund, and goes toward the purchase of equipment. According to a 1933 state law, however, it is now possible to divert this tax into the fireman's pension fund if the council approves. It was explained that the pension fund must have at least $15,000 on hand before it can begin paying pensions. The change would put the fire tax in the pension fund until there is a total accumulation of $25,000, at which time the fire tax would again be diverted to the equipment fund. There is not sufficient in the present pension fund to permit payment to super-annuated or disabled firemen, it was pointed out. The pension fund is required by state law, the council was told. The ordinance making the change was given its first reading last night and will be called up for further consideration at the next regular meeting.

The council over-rode Brown's objections to appointing a special committee of aldermen, one from each ward, to act with the engineers and attorneys in furthering the municipal light and power project, and the waterworks project. Brown shouted that it was the council's business, and that the council should have a chance to know what is going on in these works, and that he did not want to be a party to any "railroading." The council gave the mayor authority to appoint the committee by a 6-1 vote, Brown opposing. Alderman F. R. Mathews did not attend the meeting.

Taking action first as the city council, and then as the commissioners of the road district, the body heard a petition to vacate East Independence avenue from 1045 feet east of the intersection of E. Independence and Myrtle street, then running easterly along the street to an intersection with Lisbon avenue, a total distance of 1430 feet. The closing of the street, it was explained, was desirous because the bridge which crosses Mauvaisterre street at this point is in a sad state of repair. As commissioners of the road district, the body set the date of Oct. 19, 2:00 p. m., as the time for a hearing to be held on the proposal, which was signed by 52 persons. The place of the meeting is to be named in notices to be posted by the clerk of the road district.

To Name Street

The Jacksonville Art Association's efforts to have the name of Strawn Way placed on the street now known as Dunlap Court or Alley A advanced to the ordinance stage when the council authorized the city attorney to draw an ordinance changing the name of the street, over the protest of Alderman Brown. The street has never been officially named Dunlap Court, it was pointed out. Alderman Brown said he had interviewed a number of people on Alley A and that they objected to changing the name. The petition for naming the street Strawn Way was signed by the officers of the Art Association, and the committee in charge of the project.

Reports from the city treasurer, Gertrude Hamilton, showing a balance of $26,958 in the general fund, $66,871, in the special funds, and $141,128 in the special assessment account; from the health department; from Justice of Peace A. B. Opperman, Chief of Police Frank Kiloran, and C. J. Wright, superintendent of the water department, showing collections for August of $6,840.23, and water sold in the month amounting to $6,748.18, and City Clerk John R. Phillips, showing collections of $613.75 for August, were placed on file.

LIFE OF ORIENT DISCUSSED AT B. P. W. C. MEET

Prof. F. B. Oxtoby Addresses Business Woman's Club Last Night

"The Life of the Orient" showing characteristics and customs of the people of the Near East was most interestingly portrayed in an illustrated lecture given by Prof. F. B. Oxtoby, Thursday evening at the meeting of the Business and Professional Woman's club, held at the Peacock Inn.

Supper was served at 6:15 and during this time, Miss Hester Burbridge introduced the new members and guests, also Miss Dorothea Fitch, representing the New York Concert association, who spoke of the Jacksonville Cooperative Concert organization, which is sponsoring a series of concerts for the winter season.

Following this the business session was in charge of Miss Charlotte Ryan, the vice-president, and announcements for the month were made. The musical program given by Miss Lorine Deweese, of the faculty of the School for the Blind was a delightful part of the program. Her numbers were: "Autumn Sadness" by Nevin; Slumber Song, Gaynor. Miss DeWeese was accompanied by Miss Alice Mathis, of the faculty of the School for the Blind.

Prof. Oxtoby in emphasizing the great appeal which the orient has for those who travel there said, "Early in life, as a student I longed to travel in the Near East. Before the World War a trip to the orient was filled with interest, however, a more recent visit in Palestine, Egypt and Constantinople brought to my notice great changes, not only in the cities but in the very life of the people. Some of the romance is gone by the new customs creeping in. Now a traveler may go through Palestine in twenty four hours. Formerly it took days on horseback, now the good roads make it possible for automobiles to traverse the country.

"There is no depression in Jerusalem," said Dr. Oxtoby, "the Jews are coming into the country in great numbers and in industry the cities are all thriving. Palestine is a small country, one sixth the size of Illinois, yet it has a tremendous variety of climate. The Dead Sea is the farthest point below the ocean of any other place in the world. There are two seasons, the rainy season and the months in which it never rains.

"The old Orient inside the walls has narrow streets, old shops and buildings. Outside the streets are wide and automobiles and trucks are on the fine roads from Jerusalem to Damascus and along the Dead Sea. The drive to Nazareth is one of the most beautiful."

Dr. Oxtoby stated that he was intrigued by the art displayed in the shopping. He soon noted the three prices, the American price. The price for the Jews and the native price. He stressed the fact that the visitor should never pay the price asked.

The pictures showed the beautiful coloring of the native costumes, the picturesque shops and caravans of the old Orient. The seven wells one of them depicted with the grooves from use during 4000 years, also the Virgin Spring at Nazareth, the well used in the time of Christ were pictures attracting close attention. The flowers along the Sea of Gallilee, the Shepherds with their sheep and cattle, the primative oxen teams, the women grinding the meal by hand were all deeply interesting, especially in contrast to the modern scenes of autotrucks and garages. The scene of the English soldiers marching in the streets, and the picture of the new city of TelAriv, the home of fifty thousand Jews, modern in every way an unusual study in contrasts of the old and new orient.

It was announced that the next meeting would be Oct. 17, in charge of the Education committee, of which Miss Rose Ranson is chairman. New members are: Miss Lillian Carter, Mrs. Verna Massey, Mrs. Hals Benson, Miss Hattie Larean, Mrs. Margaret Brown. Guests were: Miss Dorthea Hitch, Mrs. P. B. Oxtoby, Rev. and Mrs. McKendree Blair, Miss Alice Mathis. Supper committee included: the Misses Fern Taylor, Jane Crawford, Helen Standberg.

The organization is invited to attend a district meeting to be held in Decatur, October 16. Many Jacksonville members are expecting to attend.
